VOL. XXVIII BELLEFONTE, PA., THURSDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 4, 1897. NO. 43

PENNSYLVANIA IS SOLID.

The Republican Majority in the State 145,000.

SWALLOW SURPRISED POLITICIANS

For Auditor General McCauley Will Have 170,000—Ohio, Iowa, Massachusetts, Maryland and New Jersey in the Republican Column.

RETURNS FROM VARIOUS COUNTIES

This State has gone Republican, but not by anything like the plurality of one year ago. It is not likely that the plurality for Beacom will exceed 175,000, and it may be less than that. The vote for Rev. Dr. Swallow, the Prohibitionist candidate for State Treasurer, is a great surprise to Republicans and Democrats.

Returns at midnight from the State indicate that Dr. Swallow, known in politics as "The Fighting Parson," has received more than 125,000 votes. In the counties of Blair, Clinton, Cumberland, Dauphin, Huntingdon, Lycoming, Juniata, Montour and Northumberland the returns indicate that Swallow defeated Beacom, the regular Republican candidate. In 1895 the Prohibition vote in the State was 20,779, and last year it was 19,274.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—The complete returns from all the wards in Philadelphia show a plurality of 71,019 for Beacom, for State Treasurer, The rest of the Republican ticket has approximately the same plurality. Swallow's vote is 15,556. The vote for Thompson (Ind. Rep.) is slightly over 3,000. The majority in favor of the $12,000,000 loan is 15,694. In 1895 the Republican plurality was 74,548, and last year McKinley had 113,139.

HARRISBURG, November 2.—Semi-official returns indicate that Swallow has carried Dauphin county by about 500. His majority in Harrisburg is 344 and in Steelton 220. He also carried Hummelstown, Middleton and other large districts in the county. The doctor's friends did not anticipate such a result and are parading the streets of Harrisburg to-night with a band of musicians. The politicians are paralyzed and offer no explanation of the Swallow vote.

The republicans have carried the county for everything except state treasurer by from 2,500 to 3,000 majority.

PITTSBURG, November 2.—Returns received up to 10:30 p. m. indicate a plurality of 10,000 for Beacom, republican candidate for state treasurer, in Pittsburg, and 23,000 plurality in Allegheny county. The vote for Swallow, prohibition, was light. Thompson, independent, ran well in some districts. His vote in the county is estimated at 7,000. The entire republican county ticket was elected. The estimated plurality of Shafer, republican candidate for judge, is 23,000.

BLAIR COUNTY.

Holidaysburg, Nov. 2.—This is a day of political surprises in Blair county. Thirty six precincts give Dr. Silas C. Swallow 841 plurality and his vote is steadily increasing. His total plurality will not fall short of 1,300, Hollidaysburg, Altoona, Tyrone, Martinsburg and Gaysport were carried by the cold water people. The local hotel men worked at the polls for Swallow. The woman politician made her appearance in Gaysport and contributed to the success of the preacher candidate there.

FAYETTE COUNTY.

Uniontown, Nov. 2.—The reports from the precincts heard from indicate that E. H. Reppert, Republican, has carried the county over D. M. Hertzog, Democratic, for judge by at least 1,200 plurality.

WESTMORELAND COUNTY,

Greensburg, Nov. 2.—An exceptionally light vote was polled in Westmoreland county to-day. Republican Chairman Cunningham estimates Beacom's plurality in the county at about 2,500. McCauley leads Beacom by 200 votes.

ARMSTRONG

Kittanning, Nov. 2.—Beacom and McCauley will have 1,800 majority in this county.

BEAVER.

New Brighton, Nov. 2.—A drenching rain from 6 to 7 o'clock reduced the vote by probably 15 per cent. The districts heard from give Beacom about 90 majority. He will carry the county by 1,300. Thompson's vote in the county will be 500.

GREENE.

Waynesburg, Nov. 2— Many of the farmers remained at home to husk corn, which they were prevented from doing by the long drought. The Democratic State ticket will have about 3,000 votes and the Republican about 2,000.

NORTHAMPTON.

Easton, Nov. 2.—The estimated Democratic plurality is 600, a Republican gain of 299. Twenty-seven out of 77 districts of the county heard from show that Swallow polled 944 votes. His vote in the county will probably reach 1,500.

BUTLER.

Butler, Nov. 2.—Only about 35 per cent of the vote was polled to-day. The county will give a Republican plurality of not less than 800.

CLARION.

Clarion, Nov. 2.—Clarion county has gone Democratic, as usual.

LAWRENCE.

New Castle, Nov. 2.—Beacom, for State Treasurer, will have about 2,000 plurality, and McCauley about the same for Auditor General.

CAMERON.

Emporium, Nov. 2.—Cameron county with one small district missing gives Beacom 474, Brown 238, Swallow 231 McCauley 531, Ritter 310.

MONTGOMERY.

Norristown, Nov. 2.—Montgomey county's estimated Republican plurality is 2,000 a Democratic gain of 229. The vote for Swallow will be about 3,000.

CLINTON.

Lock Haven, Nov. 2.—Returns from 15 out of 33 districts in Clinton county indicate Swallow's majority to be 600 to 700.

INDIANA.

Indiana Nov. 2.—The estimated Republican plurality is 2,000, a Democratic gain of 375. Swallow's vote is estimated at 500.

FRANKLIN.

Chambersburg, Nov. 2.—Estimated Republican plurality 800, a Democratic gain of 552. Swallow's vote is about 1,500.

MERCER.

Mercer. Nov. 2.—Sixteen out of 64 precincts, including the boroughs, gave Beacom 657 plurality over Brown.

FRANKLIN.

Franklin, Nov. 2.—Returns indicate that the Republicans have carried Venango county by 750 plurality for the State ticket.

CRAWFORD.

Titusville, Nov. 2.—Henderson, Republican, for Common Pleas Judge, carried the city by three votes.

Swallow on Top in Lycoming,

A letter received by F. Potts Green this morning from Clevan Dinges says: Swallow carried Lycoming county by over 2200, and has 4500 votes. He carried every ward in Williamsport over Beacom by the following majorities 1st, 96, 2nd 49, 3rd 57, 4th 36, 5th 37, 6th 140, 7th, 139, 8th 150, 9th 79, 10th 106. 11th 64, 12th 153, 13th 98, total majority 1241. Swallow vote in Williamsport 2090.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The entire Tammany ticket in the Greater New York was elected to-day. From the latest and best available returns Van Wyck has about 75,000 plurality over Low in the Greater New York and Low has about 50,000 over Tracy.

The total votes for each of the four prominent candidates will finally stand very close to these figures: Van Wyck, 216,000; Low, 141,000; Tracy, 93,000; George, 18,000. Gleason's vote is insignificant.

OHIO.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 2.—Governor Bushnell has carried Ohio by a majority of from 20,000 to 25,000. This insures the election of a republican majority in the general assembly and the return of Marcus A. Hanna to the United States senate. In this city and Cuyahoga county the republican ticket has a majority of from 4,000 to 5,000 and the three republican senators and nine republican representatives in the legislature are elected.

MARYLAND.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 2.—This city strongly republican and Malster elected mayor. Legislature may be republican but returns are tardy. Returns from the State continue to come in slowly, but ten precincts outside of Baltimore having been received at this hour.

IOWA.

DES MOINES, Nov. 2—Chairman McMillan, of the republican committee, claims the State by from 17,000 to 30,000 plurality. Chairman Walsh makes no claims, nor does he make any concessions.

KANSAS.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 2.—At 10 o'clock Kansas returns have been received from but half a dozen outlying counties out of 105 in which elections are held. As the tickets were entirely local, it is impossible at this hour, and will be before tomorrow, to give an estimate at all approaching reliability.

MICHIGAN.

DETROIT, Nov. 2.—Democrats reelect Maybury and gain two aldermen. With ten precincts yet to be reported the re-election of Mayor Maybury (Dem.) is assured.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—For the second time in two years this city, ordinarily strongly democratic, gave a substantial majority to Roger Wolcott, the republican candidate for governor, at the State election to-day.

KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 2.—Returns received by the Democratic State Committee up to 10 o'clock indicate that the State has gone democratic by about 20,000.

NEW JERSEY.

TRENTON, Nov. 2.—Democracy made big gains in New Jersey today, although the vote polled was not heavy.

LET THE ROOSTERS CROW.

A Big Republican Victory in Centre County.

Tuesday was election day in Bellefonte and all the banks and hotel bars were closed. It seemed like Sunday and old citizens say it was the quietest election ever held in Bellefonte, A light vote was polled all over the county. In this city not half the vote was cast. The big surprise in this election was the vote received by "Fighting Parson" Swallow. It was beyond all expectations and seemed to draw from both the republicans and democrats alike.

The result in Centre county is a big victory for the republican party. Chairman Gray claims that we have carried it by the following vote:

State Treasurer—Beacom, (Rep.) 2205, Brown, (Dem.) 2108, Swallow, (Pro.) 1468, Thompson, (Ind.) 12; Beacom's majority 97.

Auditor-general—McCauley 2576, Ritter 2517, Lathrope 656; McCauley's majority 59.

Jury Commissioner—Williams 2597, Hoy 2538, Dale 604. Williams' majority 59.

County Surveyor—Cleaver 2606, Wetzel 2650; Wetzel's majority 44.

The only thing to mar the republican victory is the defeat of Cleaver, a sturdy republican, and one who deserved better treatment at the hands of the party.

HENRY GEORGE DEAD.

Advocate of the Single Tax Issue Passes Away.

PROMINENT IN GREATER NEW YORK

A Most Interesting Candidate for the Office of Mayor of Greater New York.

THE END WAS A PEACEFUL ONE

NEW YORK, October 29.—Henry George, author of "Progress and Poverty," and condidate of the Thomas Jefferson democracy for mayor of New York, died at 4:55 o'clock this morning in the Union square hotel, of cerebral apoplexy.

In his great Cooper Union speech accepting the nomination for mayor less than a month ago he said :

"I'll make this race if it costs me my life. This is a call to duty and as a good citizen I have no right to disregard it on account of mere personal consideration.

To-day the cheers of the workers have suddenly been changed to figures, for, true to his word, Henry George, apostle of the rights of men, died as he wished to die—in harness, fighting for the cause— toward the close of the greatest municipal political contest the world has ever seen.

The end was peaceful and he died without pain. This man of mighty brain and undaunted courage was physically frail, and the strain of an exciting campaign requiring speech making at points many miles apart, night after night, was more than he could stand. He kept up to the end, and only a few hours before the dread messenger cried "Halt," Henry George had addressed enthusiastic audiences in three of the towns of the borough of Queen's, and a still larger assemblage in an up town hall here.

He spoke at White Stone at 8 o'clock, and made speeches at College Point and Flushing before returning to New York to speak at the Central opera house. Mrs. George went with him. All the halls in which he spoke were filled, and at College Point and Flushing crowds were turned away. At White Stone he drove from the railroad station to the meeting hall at a gallop. To the cheering crowd he said :

"I believe that all the needed reforms are summed up in that philosophy—the right of every man to eat, to drink, to speak, as he sees fit, so long as he does not entrench on the rights of any other man. I believe that God, the Father, can take care of his own laws. There is no need for us to get into trouble trying to meddle with God's laws to enforce them.

"If I am elected, and I believe that I will be elected, I will enforce the law upon the rich and poor alike. I have pledged myself to search out the charges popularly made against Mr. Richard Croker. If I am elected these charges shall be investigated. If they are proven untrue, let him go unscathed back to England or to any land he pleases. But if they are true," and Mr. George's voice rang out in menacing tones that visibly excited his audience, "let the law be enforced ; let him go to the penitentiary. He shall go there."

Mr. George picked up his hat, said "Good bye," and started for the door. The crowd rose, cheering, and elbowed and fought to get near him. They reached out their hands to touch his clothing.

At College Point there were 1,200 common laborers, a rough crowd, closely packed in the hall. Mr. George was introduced as the friend of the workingman. He began :

"I have never claimed to be a friend of the workingman. I donot now make any such claim. [There was a pause of dead silence.] I have not and do not intend to advocate anything in the special interest of the laboring man. [Another dead pause. Mr George walked the full length of the stage and let out his full voice in a shout.] I am for men. [The crowd set up a cheering and stamping that the room was filled with a choking dust.] I am for men—the equal rights of all men. Let us be done with asking privileges for the laboring men."

There was much cheering and shouting as the speaker pushed his way out of the hall. He drove to Flushing, a long ride, at the end of which he spoke to 1,800 people who had waited an hour to see and cheer for their idol.

Off again, and this time to a hall in the centre of Manhattan Island. Here there was prolonged cheering.

"I hear above your shouts the roosters crowing," he said. "Next Tuesday you will hear that rooster crow again, and the party of freedom and of the common people will have come in again, after years of longing and waiting and after various other kinds of democracy—after that of Cleveland, after that of Croker.

"I have traveled much, wishing, after the democratic fashion, to show myself to the people whose suffrage I ask. I have met everywhere crowds like this, intense in spirit and large in numbers. After meeting them I believe I shall be elected. Since '86 I have not had my light under a bushel. You know what I believe. I believe in meeting my fellow men and talking to them. If elected, I will honestly, fearlessly and conscientiously carry out the principles for which I stand. You may believe me and trust the result."

Then Henry George broke away from the crowd. His long day's work was over—his busy life's work was done. He went to his hotel at midnight, hoping to get a few hours' sleep and rise strong enough for a still more arduous day's work. For he was to have addressed six great meetings to-night. Mr. George arrived at the hotel about 1 o'clock this morning.

Not long after reaching the hotel he retired. Mrs. George waited for him in room 22 of the hotel. It was about 3:30 o'clock when Mrs. George was awakened. She found Mr. George sitting in an arm chair. "I am not feeling quite comfortable," said Mr. George to his wife.

"Will you go back to bed?" inquired Mrs. George, anxiously.

"I will sit here awhile," was the answer.

Mrs. George at once grew anxious as to her husband's condition. Mr. George gradually grew incoherent and lapsed into semi-consciousness.

Mrs. George was now thoroughly alarmed and called her son, Henry George Jr., from an adjoining room. Frank Stevens was also called in. Mr. George was now unconscious. A call was sent to Dr. Kelley and he came without delay. Mr. George was still unconscious. All efforts to revive him failed. Without a sign of recognition to those around him he passed peacefully away at 4:45 o'clock.

Mrs. George was prostrated and was cared for by the friends of the family at the hotel.

Dr. G. E. Kelley, Mr. George's family physician, found Mr. George stricken with apoplexy. He was already beyond hope. The physician could do nothing and the family and he awaited the end. Mr. George's death was painless.

Dr. Kelley said that he saw Mr. George a few days ago and that he was then in a better condition than he had been at the opening of the campaign.

When asked as to whether he had advised Mr. George to enter the canvas, the doctor replied evasively: "I don't think any power in Christiandom could have prevented Henry George from sacrificing himself in the cause in which he was enlisted, and I knew him well."

In the death certificate Dr. Kelley says :

"I hereby certify that I attended the deceased from September, 1881, to October, 1897; that I last saw him alive on the 29th of October, 1897, at 5 o'clock in the morning and that to the best of my knowledge and belief the cause of his death is here under written : 'Chief cause, apoplexy (cerebral); contributing cause, asphyxia; duration of disease, one-half hour.'"

FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

NEW YORK, October 29.—The committee in charge of the funeral ceremonies of Henry George has arranged the following order of services:

"From sunrise on Sunday, October 31, till sunset of the same day, the body of the great leader will lie in state in the Grand Central Palace. Ushers will be present to direct the people in their passage before the platform upon which the body will rest. Every one who feels the nobility and single heartedness of Henry George's life work is invited to be present at this ceremony.

"During the afternoon, between 2 and 3 o'clock the funeral services and orations will take place. The funeral car will start from the Grand Central palace at 7 o'clock on Sunday evening, and proceed by a route to be announced later, via the Brooklyn bridge to the Brooklyn city hall. In this informal procession every friend and admirer of Henry George is invited to take part."

HIS SON NOMINATED.

The Thomas Jefferson democracy this afternoon substituted the name of Henry George, Jr. as candidate for mayor of Greater New York. The nomination was tendered unanimously, and George accepted.

Henry George, Jr., is the oldest son of the late mayoralty candidate. He is about 35 years old, and, like his father, is literary in his tastes. He was at one time managing editor of the Jacksonville (Fla) Citizen, but for some time has been engaged with his father in literary work, which was suspended when the latter accepted the mayoralty nomination.

THE FUNERAL.

NEW YORK, October 31.—The body of Henry George lay in state today in the Grand Central Palace, and 30,000 people reverently passed the casket and looked upon the face of the dead philosopher. From 9 o'clock in the morning until 3 in the afternoon, a steady stream of men, women and children poured into the hall.

The immense throng was composed of representatives of all classes, of all shades of life, of all religious opinions. On every face was stamped the unmistakable signs of sincere regret, while hundreds of faces were drawn with suffering and pain. To thousands of those who passed by, Henry George was personally known, and it was these who lingered for a longer moment, to gaze again on the face of the man whom to know was to love. Some of them wept. The children, of whom there were hundreds, were raised aloft by the guard and held while they gazed at the features of the man who died fighting to brighten their lives.

In the early dawn the body was moved in a plain hearse from the Union Square hotel to the Grand Central Palace, unattended save by the guards of honor and four policemen. Behind the hearse came a single carriage. Anna George, the youngest daughter, insisted upon accompanying the body to the Grand Central Palace.

The casket itself was devoid of any ornament save the heavy silver handles and the plate, which read : "Henry George—Died October 29, 1897."

The floral decorations were profuse. A mass of wreathed flowers was sent by the Chicago Single Tax Club.

Before 3 o'clock the people were permitted to occupy the seats in the hall. The front seats of the main part of the hall were reserved for the immediate friends of the deceased, the pall bearers and the ushers. All the rest of the main floor was open to the crowd, and it took but a short time to fill the hall. The platform, of course, was reserved, and the galleries, which hold a comparatively small number, were likewise reserved for the holders of tickets. It was said to have been the intention at first not to have any policemen in the hall at all, but a large number of uniformed police were present. Owing to the careful arrangement in the street, however, the crowd inside was not permitted to reach such proportions as would lead to unpleasant crowding such as might result in a panic. Every seat was taken and in certain portions a considerable number of persons were permitted to stand. It is estimated that nearly 6,000 people were at the services.

The pall bearers were : Tom L. Johnson, August Lewis, Andrew McLean, Thomas G. Shearman, Arthur McEwan, Louis F. Post, Jerome O'Neill and Charles Frederick Adams.

The honorary pall bearers some of whom sat on the platform, included Mayor William L. Strong, of New York; Mayor Frederick W. Wurster, of Brooklyn; Willis J. Abbot, Albert L. Johnson, John P. Cranford, Charles W. Dayton, George Cary Eggleston, Horace White, Edward McHugh, Bolton Hall, John Milmer, Charles O'Conner Hennessey, John Swinton, Lawson Purdy, John H. Gardner, A. Van Dusen, John R. Waters, M. R. Leverson, Frank Stephens and Robert Schickenbach.

The exercises began at 3:25 o'clock with the singing of the hymn "Lead, Kindly Light," by the Plymouth Church quartette. Rev. D. Heber Newton, who was Mr. George's warm personal friend as well as pastor, then read the burial service. Dr. Newton did not wear his priestly robes, and he had no reading desk. The service was, therefore, in a way, entirely informal, there being no responses. It was, however, the regular burial service of the Episcopal church.

The only music rendered in connection with it was the chanting of the Lord's Prayer.

At the conclusion of the burial service, Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbot spoke briefly upon the character of Henry George.

The other speakers were Rabbi Gattheil, Rev. Edward McGlynn and John S. Crosby.

The last address was concluded shortly after 5 o'clock, and the meeting was dismissed with directions from a member of the committee as to the manner of dismissal from the hall. Nearly all of those present took advantage of the opportunity offered to view the face of Henry George, and the march past his coffin was continued as it had been in progress during the day.

Not a dissenting voice was heard of the declaration that Henry George was a lover of the people, who, he believed, were being oppressed, and that he gave his life that humanity might live.

The eulogies uttered, the day gone, the streets became filled with people who wished to see the funeral cortege as it passed in solemn procession down New York's greatest streets, thence across Brooklyn bridge, thence through Brooklyn's great streets to the Brooklyn city hall. There the public gave over the body to the family, and the casket was taken to the modest house in Fort Hamilton, from which they will be borne to their final resting place in Greenwood to-morrow morning.

At the lowest estimate 125,000 people saw the casket as it wended its way to that place, where the public was compelled to stand aside in reverence and sympathy while the family claimed its own.

Beaten and Want Reinforcements.

CAIRO, October 29.—Dispatches from Berber, the southmost point reached by the Anglo-Egyptian expedition on the Nile, say that, according to the report of the spies, the Dervish commander at Metemmeh (the Dervish position between Berber and Khartoum) has announced in the mosque that he lost 600 men during the bombardment of Metemmeh by the British gunboats on October 20, when the British shelled the town and retired after inspecting it with a view of ascertaining its strength and defensive works. The spies report also that the Dervish commander had asked the Khalifa to send him reinforcements.

THE WEDDING RING.

Death lurks in every place in this "vale of tears." There is no happiness, no joy, no gaiety, no success, no sorrow and no failure that may not secrete him. A favorite hiding-place for death, where women are concerned, is in the very happiness and rapture of wifehood and the sacred joy of motherhood. But too frequently there is death in the embrace of love, and the first touch of baby-fingers is succeded by the chilly grasp of the grim destroyer.

If wives and mothers would only resort to the right remedy when they suffer from weakness and disease of the delicate and important feminine organs that are baby's threshold to life, there would be fewer husbands bereft, and fewer homes saddened by an infant's loss. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes the feminine organs strong, healthy and vigorous. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It banishes the maladies of the period of suspense, and makes baby's entry to the world easy and comparatively painless. An honest druggist will not try to induce a customer to take an inferior substitute for this great remedy, for the sake of extra profit.

"Mrs. Seagle was a great sufferer from a combination of female diseases, a few years ago, from which she has been entirely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Geo. A. Seagle, Esq., of Box 130, Wytheville, Va. "She is thoroughly convinced that there is no medicine on earth equal to the 'Favorite Prescription,' and she doesn't hesitate to say so. She has recommended it to her lady friends, and in all cases, where it has been given a fair trial, it has given entire satisfaction."

In cases of constipation and torpid liver, no remedy is equal to Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They regulate and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. They never fail. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. An honest dealer will not urge a substitute upon you.

Funeral of Mrs. Anna Shaffer.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna Mary Shaffer, mother of Mrs. H. A. McKee, took place Wednesday Oct. 22 at 10 o'clock from the residence of H. A. McKee on Willow Bank street. There was a large attendance of sorrowing friends and relatives all anxious to pay a last tribute of respect to this kindly, christian lady. The floral offerings were quite numerous and very beautiful.

Solemn and affecting services were conducted by her pastor Dr. William Laurie, assisted by Rev, E. E, Hosbour, pastor of the Lutheran church. The pall-bearers were James Harris, Frank Stover, Clement Dale, John Kline, W. A· Ishler and S. H. Williams. Interment in Union cemetery.

Pill-Sense.

It stands to reason that Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills will crowd out of the market many of the nauseous old timers. A better medicine at less than half the price is all the argument needed to keep the demand what it has been—phenomenal—40 doses 10 cents. They cure Sick Headache Biliousness, and allay all stomach Irritations. At all druggists.—28.

No Printers There.

Here's a straw which may perhaps indicate the general direction of the moral winds. For some time there has been published in Stillwater prison a paper called the "Prison Mirror." It has had to stop publication now for the reason that there are no printers in the establishment. At the same time the prison can still furnish its own chaplain, and there would be no difficulty in finding officials to start several banks.

A RECEIPT FOR A DAY.

"Take a dash of water cold
And a little leaven of prayer,
A little bit of Sunshine gold
Dissolved in the morning air;
Add to your meal some merriment
And a thought for kith and kin,
And then, as a prime ingredient,
Aplenty of work thrown in.
But spice it all with the essence of love
And a little whiff of play;
Let a wise old Book and a glance above
Complete the well-spent day."

NEMESIS.

BY VICTOR GAGE KIMBERT.

The library in Governor Andrews handsome residence was dimly lighte for it was early in the evening, the sof light falling from the chandelie brought out more clearly the beauty o each picture and work of art, witl which the wealthy governor liked t surround himself. There were book all the way from the great encyclo paedias down to the last review, stat ues and bronzes from other lands, an a great easy-chair where the governo himself sat when wearied by the care and duties of office.

But to-night no chair that was eve upholstered could rest his weary fram for before him knelt a woman in bit terest agony, imploring him to exercis his prerogative and save the life of he husband, who was condemned to death She was a beautiful woman; her fac was colorless, but each feature was ex quisitely molded, and her large, sof eyes, luminous with tears and sad dened by grief were in themselve lovely enough to make even a plain face glorious.

How she pleaded. She used every argument that a desperate woma could think of, but in vain. She tol him of the little children who mus bear the terrible heritage of sham from no fault of theirs, and picture the want and wretchedness awaitin them as well as herself. She told o the kindness of the husband whe sober, and reiterated the fact that bu for intoxication his hand would neve have been raised against a fellow man; how he had said if he migh have another chance no drop of in toxicants should ever cross his lips but that he would try hard to redeen the past. She did not try to make hi crime less, or object to the justice o the penalty; she only pleaded fo mercy—pleaded, too with such an ut ter abandonment of grief that the eye of the governor grew moist, and hi heart ached in sympathy with hers but still, as before, he refused he petition.

"It is simply impossible, madame Much as I feel for your grief, tha which none can be greater, I should be untrue to all principles of justic should I interfere with the regula course of the law. Your husband ha had a fair trial; and I am sorry t say it to you, but I think he has beer justly condemned for the crime fo which he will lose his life. That yo and your innocent children should al so suffer is deplorable; if sin could b robbed of its complexity, so tha none but the guilty should suffer it consequences, it would be less horrible but so long as there is sin there must also be suffering by the sinner and all connected with him to the last de gree. His condition at the time o the crime, though serving as an ex cuse in your eyes, goes for little i the eyes of the world at large. The public are already tired of having flimsy excuses brought up to defeat the ends of justice. It is difficult to con vict a criminal, for the simple reason that his attorneys move heaven and earth to find something which will ap peal to a jury and result in at leas a disagreement. That your husband was convicted at the first trial is evi dence to me that the case must have been remarkably clear."

"Not so," she interrupted, eagerly "It only means that we had no means to employ skilled talent. But it is not a new trial for which I am beg ging. It is not justice but mercy that I implore, and oh! I beseech you, in the name of your own fair sons and daughters to be pitiful to me in my extremity!"

The kind face of the governor work ed painfully, and tears that were no discredit to his manhood filled his eyes; but still he had the same reply "I cannot do what you wish. The power of pardon is no child's toy, to be given at pleasure, but a great re sponsibility, to be used with the ut most precaution, lest the barriers against crime are destroyed and the innocent left to the mercy of the law less."

Still she did not yield. Still she pleaded till at last his patience was ex hausted, and he told her firmly she must desist.

"Only my great pity for you has in duced me to listen so long. He must die on the day appointed. I shall not interfere."

She went slowly out into the night It was very dark, though she had not noticed the gathering shadows while in the library, so intense had been her anguish; but she knew now that she must have been pleading for hours and she wondered at the patience that had suffered her presence so long. She began to feel bodily exhaustion, and stopped at a near-by bakery to get a roll and a cup of tea, that she might have strength for the railway journey before her.

Mechanically she entered the car and paid her fare when the conductor asked her for her ticket, for she had neglected to buy one, and her head whirled so that it seemed as if she were some one else, and not connected in the remotest degree with the woman who had knelt in the governor's li brary. Slowly the scene flitted before her and she tried hard to realize how he could have done otherwise than he did; and then she wondered if that other woman, not herself, could no have produced better arguments. Sh saw herself and her husband as the began housekeeping in a small way to be sure, but still comfortably, with a little room for his mother, who had not been at all the disagreeable perso mothers-in-laws were said to be, bu a real mother to the tired clerk, who knew far more about the color and price of a yard of ribbon than she did of housekeeping. She had learned very rapidly, the older woman had kindly said, and had taken great pride in her work and in keeping the little ones neat and clean when they had come one by one into the nest, which was always crowded, yet not ful enough to overflow. Then she saw her husband in his cell, awaiting ex ecution, and then—a woman fainted in the car, and kind hands raised her and a physician on the train gave her a restorative, and after a while she left it leaving the passengers to won der about the beautiful woman who was in such evident grief.

"Something out of the ordinary," said the physician. "Her trouble was no common affair. She was at the point of exhaustion. I suggested her stopping at S—— and entering the hospital there for a week; but she re fused so vehemently that there was nothing more to be said, for of course I had no right to insist. But it will be an insane asylum in the end, I imagine; she was three-fourths demented to-night."

Sane or insane, her condition did not prevent her from reaching home. With bitter moans she told her sad failure to her husband's mother, who listened to each word in a curious, half-dazed way, yet asking many questions concerning her reception and the gover nor's manner.

"I was foolish to let you go," she said, slowly. "I might have known it would not answer. I will go myself to-morrow."

"Oh, mother, it will be useless! You could say nothing that I have not al ready said. He lost patience at the last. I doubt if you can see him even."

"I shall see him," the elder woman answered, a strange look upon her face, comely yet, in spite of the half century and more it had known. "I shall see him, and I believe he will give me my son's life."

"Then why, oh, why did not you go at first?"

"Because I would rather suffer a dozen deaths than go—but to save his life—yes, I must do it!"

"Why do you think he will listen to you, mother?" queried the wife, anxiously.

No reply save a slow shake of the head was vouchsafed, and she took her departure, leaving anxious forebodings in the mind of her daughter-in-law as to her sanity.

But there was no doubt of her sanity as she stood before Governor Andrews and demanded the life of the man for whom his wife had pleaded so nobly.

"Am I never to have any rest from this case?" he cried, angrily.

"As much as you deserve, probably," was the reply, "for you are in a great measure responsible for the crime for which this man is condemned, and ought to pay part of the penalty."

"Nonsense! I never saw the man, and I assure you I shall grant no pardon, either for threats of entreaties."

"I shall offer neither. It is true, indeed, that you never saw him; yet you will never dare to let him go to a felon's death, for, strange as it would seem to the world in which you are so popular, this man is your son!"

"What do you mean? Who are you?" gasped the governor, though her words had brought a grim possibility before his mind.

"I am Annette Wilkins. I was Annette Brainard." He started and visibly paled. "When you came to our village forty years ago, there was not a more innocent, light-hearted girl than myself. Your memory will tell you if I was pretty or not, and how I foolishly prized the fatal beauty that only worked my destruction. You know what your flattery and false words of love wrought, and what a wrecked, ruined thing you left in place of the simple country girl you found. You do well to talk of justice!" she cried with sudden contempt. "You are well fitted to be the governor of a large commonwealth, you, who left me, almost a child in years, to meet the consequences of our mutual sin! I wonder if there is justice in earth or heaven when success like this"—and she glanced at his luxurious surroundings—"is permitted to such as you, while your oldest son lies in a felon's cell!"

There was a long silence; then the man said.—

"For twenty-five years I have lived a clean, God-fearing life; the crime and folly of my youth I believed repented of and forgiven; but repentance does not undo, and I must face the future. You tell me I am responsible for this unhappy young man's crime; how can that be?"

"In a drunken quarrel my poor boy killed the ruffian who assailed the honor of his mother, whom he had always believed to be a widow. I left the old home before he was born, and thought my wretched story was forgotten; but scandal never dies."

"My sin has found me out," said the governor. He spoke like a feeble old man. "Since circumstances have made it possible for me to save him, my son must not die on the gallows. There is no other way; I must write the pardon. If I could pay the penalty myself it might be just, but the law would accept no substitute, and my poor wife and children would suffer needless shame. You will not have suffered alone," he said, in a curious tone. "When I sign that pardon I sign my own political death warrant, for an outraged public will be my censor."

WAS TIRED OUT.

One Centre County Man Who Has Had Enough.

Tired out and sick from exposure and overwork, Ed Hall, one of a party of Centre county men who started in August for the Klondike, has given up the chase and is on his way back home. There were four men in the party from this county, and with companions picked up at other places there were fourteen in all who progressed as far as Fort Wrangle, Un-Alaska. The party has been there almost a month constructing boats for the passage up Telegraph Creek to Teslin lake, at which place they intended to camp until towards the spring of the year in that locality, when they will make their way over the mountain passes into the Klondyke territory.

But the rigors of the climate and the protracted inclement weather combined were too much for Hall and he left the party and went to Juneau, from where he has written that he will be home on the next boat coming south. His pen pictures of the horrors of the life experienced in that region by those who are trying to reach the gold fields are enough to deter any from making a start in the future. Since they arrived in British Columbia, says Hall, scarcely a day has passed that it did not rain or snow, and that sometimes the thermometer has gone as low as ten degrees below zero this early in the season. Through this kind of weather they were obliged to work every day from early dawn to late in the evening, the days being so short that even then little progress was accomplished. Many days they all worked as hard as they could, on their march to Fort Wrangle, and would not cover more than a mile or so. At Fort Wrangel there is a sort of a barrack town, but no accommodations for the large number of strangers on their way north.

For their own protection these are compelled to purchase lumber at an enormous price and build huts for shelter, or secure room in any out-of-the-way place possible. Their party had room in an old log stable, but secured it only by paying an enormous rental. In his letter Hall says that he was not alone in turning back. There are hundreds of others, and the most foolish ones of all are those who still persist in going forward this winter. He predicts that not one in ten of the number now traveling north by the inland routes will ever live to reach the Klondyke, or return if they proceed much further.

One of Two Ways.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine and as such it is not liable to any form of disease except by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

CHIEF CAUSE.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weakness or disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain, disease or inconvenience manifested in the kidneys, back bladder or urinary passage is often, by mistake, attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some sort, The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided. To find out correctly, set your urine aside for twenty four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidney or bladder trouble, The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kinney, and bladder remedy is soon realized. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents and one doller. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet. both sent free by mail. MRS. McMUTRIE PASSED AWAY.

Thursday Evening At Her Home in Coleville.

We are told every day by the death of some one, that God is certainly no respector of persons. He takes one here and one there, and sometimes it is hard to understand why it is, that the ones we love best are always taken.

Thursday evening about 7 o'clock death entered the home of Mr. Samuel McMutrie and from him took his beloved wife. About ten days ago she took a heavy cold, it settled on her lungs which resulted in pneumonia and with that she had heart trouble, the two together entirely broke her system down, and death at last claimed her. But we are made happy with the thought that she, many years ago had made her peace with Him who gave up his life for us. She has been a devout christian member of the Methodist Episcopal church of Bellefonte, for quite a number of years and whenever health permitted her, she was always at her post of duty, and whenever she had an opportunity she would speak a word for Jesus. And so with these many bright and happy thoughts, death don't seem so hard after all.

Mrs. Samuel McMutrie was born in Roopsburg, Centre Co., on March 10th 1832, making her age 65 years, 7 months, and 18 days. Her maiden name was Sarah Switzer, she was married to Mr. Samuel McMutrie on the 13th day of October 1880, they have had no children during their happy union, but her loving husband and many friends will mourn her loss. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, short services were held at the house and then they proceeded to the Methodist church on Spring street, where Rev. Dr. Stephens preach the funeral sermon; interment in Union Cemetery. The REPUBLICAN joins in with the many other friends to extend our deepest sympathy to Mr. McMurtrie.

Sudden Deaths on the Increase.

People apparently well and happy today, to-morrow are stricken down, and in ninety-nine cases out of every hundred the heart is the cause. The king of heart remedies—Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is within the reach of all, and if there are symptoms of heart disorder it should be used without delay. It relieves in 30 minutes, and cures most chronic cases.

OVER 94 YEARS OLD.

Mrs. Hannah McKinley, of Milesburg, Dies at the Home of Her Daughter at Osceola.

Mrs. Hannah McKinley, one of Centre county's oldest citizens, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Greenwalt, in Osceola, on the 22nd of October. She had been making her home with her daughter for some time but was a former resident of Milesburg. The following sketch of her life is from the Philipsburg Journal:

The remains were taken to Milesburg on Monday for interment, where her husband and two sons are also buried, the funeral taking place Tuesday from the residence of her son James. The deceased was a native of Centre county, and nearly all her life was spent at Milesburg. She was born October 3, 1803, and was therefore aged 94 years and 19 days. She is survived by one daughter, mentioned above, and two sons, James and Frank, the latter two living at Milesburg. A very appropriate service was held at the home of the daughter in Osceola, conducted by Rev. W. R. Picken, of the Methodist church. The deceased was a devout christian, and waited patiently for the Lord's call. She was an aunt of Mrs. Johnston, of Allport, who is also quite advanced in years. Four generations were represented at the funeral. There are living about twenty grandchildren and forty great grandchildren.

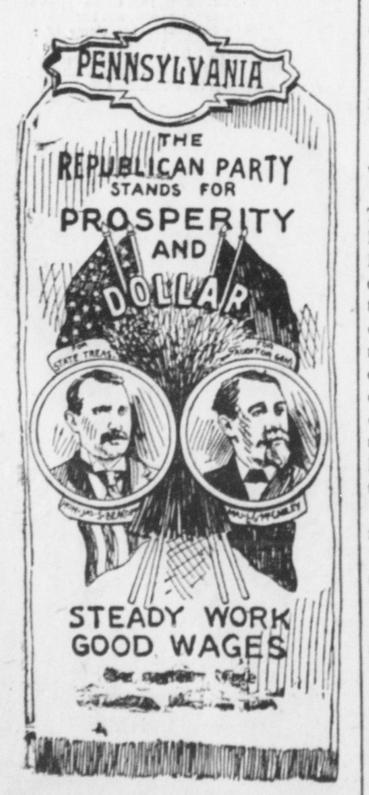
Let The Eagle Scream.



The full intensity of living is reached only by the perfectly healthy. Sickness discounts the capacity for enjoyment. If his body is all out of order and run down he will not be able to enjoy anything, no matter how full of enjoyment it may be for other people. If he is just a little bit out of order, if he "is not sick, but does not feel just right" he will only be able to enjoy things in a half-hearted sort of way. The nearer he is to being perfectly well, the nearer will his capacity for enjoyment be perfect. If this condition doesn't exist, something ought to be done. That means nine cases in ten the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works directly on the digestive organs, and on the blood and through these on every tissue of the body. It makes the appetite good, digestion and nutrition perfect, and supplies rich, red blood to all the tissues, building up solid, healthful flesh.

Send 21 cents in one cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Advisor" profusely illustrated.

REASONS FOR USING

Walter Baker & Co.'s

Breakfast Cocoa.

1. Because it is absolutely pure.
2. Because it is not made by the so-called Dutch Process in which chemicals are used.
3. Because beans of the finest quality are used.
4. Because it is made by a method which preserves unimpaired the exquisite natural flavor and odor of the beans.
5. Because it is the most economical, costing less than one cent a cup.

Be sure that you get the genuine article made by WALTER BAKER & CO. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass. Established 1780.

Transferred to a New Field.

Mr. Philip A. King, who has been representing the Baltimore Mutual Insurance company in this city since last January, has been transferred to Williamsport, Pa. The field there is much larger and Mr. King has been offered a much more lucrative salary than he received here. This news will be received with regret by Mr. King's many friends in this place, for by his gentlemanly and obliging manners he has made himself popular with all who came in contact with him, either in a social or a business way. He has been very successful in his work here and for this reason his company has seen fit to promote him. We wish him much success in his new field. He left for Williamsport on the 1:30 train Wednesday afternoon.

Sad Ending of a Spree.

William Wallace and Houston Taggart, jr., both of Northumberland, went to Sunbury Saturday night and drank so freely that about 9 o'clock young Wallace fell on the sidewalk at the city hotel and cut his head. He was taken to Fenstermacher's livery stable and a bed of blankets was made for him. His companion Taggart, laid down beside him and fell asleep. About midnight Taggart awakened and called Wallace, with the intention of taking him home. Young Wallace looked so ghastly, however, that Taggart ran for a physician. When the physician arrived he pronounced Wallace dead. Deceased was a son of Edward Wallace, the well known freight engineer on the P. & E. railroad. Both Wallace and Taggart are under age.

THE REASON WHY.

Every Why Has a Wherefore and 'Tis Well to Look for it at Times.

In these days people want to know the whys and wherefores.

The 19 century man is a natural skeptic. The why and wherefore of such is plain. He reads statements of supposed facts. He is told that every ailment of mankind can be cured. He has an ailment and tries some panacea. It fails; he tries another with the same result. Such experiments makes him look askance at future claims. Often the fault is his, but he don't see why. He may have a backache or perhaps a lame or weak back. He used plaster or liniments, they relieved him for a time, but failed to cure the trouble,

This is his fault; the why is that he did not know the wherefore of his aches. Had he known that the kidneys were the cause, that backache generally means kidney ache. That the kidneys must felter the blood constantly. That failure to do so immediately effects the back. That backache is only the first step toward many kidney disorders. Urinary troubles follow. Retention of urine. Excessive urine. Diabetes—Bright's disease, Doan's Kidney Pills are a positive specific for all kidney complaints.

The aching back has no greater enemy than Doan's kidney pills. Not injurious to the most delicate constitution. Do not act on the bowels, but direct on the kidneys.

Robbed of all His Money.

Joseph Maxwell proprietor of the Smoke Run restaurant near Philipsburg, was robbed Saturday morning of $800—four hundred dollars in gold, about three hundred in paper money and one hundred dollars in silver. The man who is suspected of taking the money lodged at the restaurant Friday night.

He is described as a young man, aged about 22 years, not very tall, but weighing probably 150 pounds. He wore a dark coat and vest, black felt hat and had a moustache of about two weeks' growth.

—We are sorry to learn that Robert McKnight Sr., of near Hunter's Park, Buffalo Run, is lying very ill with little chance of recovery. Mr. McKnight was superintendent of the gas works for many years conducting that business, with marked ability.

Kindness.

It doesn't hurt you to speak gently to the old woman who sells apples at the corner. Your personal prestige will not be lessened one bit by giving her a smile in passing; it will not stimulate your cook to laziness if you tell her how satisfactory the dinner was when you know she has tried hard to make it so. Kindness ought to be the motto of every woman, no matter in what sphere of life she may move. It is better to possess the good than the ill will of even a dog, and the surest way to secure such opinion is to be willing to dispense praise as freely as you do blame.

—Jared Harper, the grocer is erecting a handsome double house on Thomas street. It will contain all the modern improvements and will be a very desirable place to live.

TOM THUMB WEDDING.

Repeated the Second Night to a Large Audience.

As it was announced that the Tom Thumb Wedding, gotten up by some of the members of the Reformed church would be repeated on Saturday night so it was, and they certainly made a grand success of it. Promptly at half past seven the grand orchestra composed of the Bilger family of Pleasant Gap, began to play. Before the guests arrived, Master Lee Walker was introduced and sang one of his beautiful songs, Lee is quite a small lad but posesses one of the sweetest voices of any boy in central Pennsylvania. Bessie Brouse recited in an excellent manner "My Sisters Beau."

It was then announced that Earle Bell would favor the audience with a solo, which he did in an admirable manner.

The guests then began to arrive. We cannot tell exactly in what manner they came but they were met at the door by two young men Masters Chester Cronister and Paul Etters, who in their gallant manner presented the many guests to the brides mother and to the grooms widowed mother Misses Bessie Brouse and Jessie Etters. Master Lewis Lewins would announce the guests as they arrived and gave them their assumed names.

These are the guests that were present, Russel Campbell, Nettie Bair, James Lose, Lizzie Smith, Mary Weaver, Mary Smith, Richard Brouse, Lena Lose, Eddie McKee, Helen Harrison, Chas Knapp, Helen Bair, Harry Dawson, Florence Gherret, Hastings Gates, Merrel Knapp, Ida Schrock, Lida Miller, Ralph Struble, Florence Strunk, Nannie Schrock, Ralph Cole, Ruth Garman, Hugh Etters, Margarette Walsh, Ruth McCafferty, Willie Wagner, Rebecca Hewes, John Rankin, Grace Cook, Mattie Shutt, Leland Struble, Emily Lewins. After the guests had all arrived the orchestra began playing the Loghengren wedding march and the bridal party was announced. First came the minister with a long black robe on and book in his hand, that was Master Paul Wetzel, he was followed by the ushers and groomsmen, Paul Etters, Chester, Cronister, David Etters, Arthur Gerhart, John Lawrence, Nevin Wetzel. Arthur Ward, was best man by his side walked the gallant little groom Edmund Joseph attired in full dress with white kid gloves on. We may say here all the guests were attired in full evening dress. After the best man and groom had passed up the aisle they were followed by the bridesmaid, Helen Moore, Marian Grauer, dressed in white, Lucretia Williams, Louise Brackbill in blue Nellie Conley, May Brown, in pink; maid of honor Elizabeth Orvis, followed next after which the little flower girls came they were Katherine Etters, Adaline Rankin, Mamie McClure, Mary Hicklen, Alice Lowery Lottie Grenninger, next came the beautiful little bride, Martha McClure leaning on the arm of her father, Walter Rankin.

Among some of the guests were John Smith, the bachlor uncle. Jessie Derstine, Lucile Wetzel, grandparents, Anna Harris, was a maiden aunt. Raymond Jenkins Dorathy Jenkins, Marian Lewins, Edmund Lingle, Marian Lingle, were brother and sisters of the bride.

During the grand reception Miss Helen Crissman, rendered a very beautiful solo entitled "Who will buy my daisies," and Miss Helen Harrison also recited a recitation in an admirable manner. The wedding cake was sold at five cents a slice, by Esther Campbell, Luella Ardery, Roxey and Helen Mingle. Two little colored boys, Geo. Mayhew and Eddie DuBois, acted as waiters. They also pleased the audience with a number of duets.

The ladies who labored so zealiously to get this entertainment up deserve a great deal of credit, and they wish to thank the parents of all the children, and the children, the Bilger family, Prof. Reeves, and everybody, who, helped in any way at all in the interest of this entertainment for they know and we know that it was a grand success both financially and otherwise.

After Typhoid Fever

Did Not Get Over the Weak, Languid Feeling—Terrible Itching and Burning on Limbs and Hands.

"After I had typhoid fever, for a long time I could not get over the weak and languid feeling. I had no appetite and was taken with a terrible itching, burning heat on my limbs and hands. I was treated for a long time, but I did not get any better. I could not eat or sleep. A friend advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I procured a bottle and began taking it. In a few days I felt better and could eat and sleep. I continued taking Hood's Sarsaparilla until I was entirely cured." MRS. R. AVERY, Bergen, N. Y.

"My little girl was almost blind, owing to a scrofulous trouble. We resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and today her eyes are perfectly well and she is the picture of health." B. C. ALLEN, 221 West 61st Street, New York, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

BIG AUCTION SALE.

It Will Occur This Morning at 11 on the Omaha Flats.

GREAT FINANCIAL TRANSACTION

About $58,000,000 Will Be Paid Uncle Sam for the Union Pacific Railroad from Council Bluffs to Ogden.

THERE WILL BE BUT ONE BID

OMAHA, Neb., October 31.—At 11 o'clock to-morrow morning down in a dingy freight house on the Omaha flats there will be a financial transaction that in two respects will be a record breaker. In the first instance it will be the largest auction sale of which history makes mention, and in the second instance Uncle Sam will emerge from a money deal with his nephews without leaving behind him nearly all he advanced for the scheme in addition to large patches of his hide as an evidence of good faith.

Even if by some mischance, which cannot be foreseen, Uncle Sam fails tomorrow to receive his just and lawful due, he has to-night the satisfaction that came to Moses when the Hebrew law giver looked over into the promised land. He can say he saw it full and fair, even though he missed connection with it at the finish. More than that, the chances of Uncle Sam for entering the promised land are to-night, unto those held by Moses, as a thousand unto one.

About $58,000,000 will be paid by the re-organization committee for the line of the Union Pacific from Council Bluffs to Ogden. There have been rumors of other bidders, and all sorts of stories have been current regarding the intention of the "Sage syndicate" and of the "Coates syndicate." but there seems to be nothing in them. If there are any people in Omaha to-night who have an idea of bidding over the price to be paid for the reorganization committee, it would require the lens of Yerkes' telescope to locate them. The members of the reorganization committee do not say that they are to be the only bidders.

There will be but one bid, and that will be the offer of the reorganization committee. Master in Chancery W. D. Cornish has but one check guaranteeing a bid, and that is the deposit of the committee. The actual selling of the road will take place in the local freight depot of the Union Pacific.

Avoid An Early Grave.

Too often do we hear, that the average early grave was opened by neglecting a slight cough and cold. Profit by this truth, and provide yourself with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, which instantly cures all throat and lung affections. Mr. W. H. Mahoney, Lowell, Mass., writes: "I was taken sick with a bad cold. The doctors did not seem to help me, and everybody said I was getting consumption, when a relative recommended Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. I got a bottle and it helped me, and after taking two bottles I was cured, to the surprise of everybody. I shall always recommend it to my friends, as I know it to be a sure cure." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is sold everywhere for 25 cents. Don't accept a substitute.

The Wire Saved Him.

From Saturday's Philipsburg Journal.

William Killman, of Tyrone, the well known Pennsylvania railroad lineman on the Tyrone division, made a very narrow escape from instant death yesterday afternoon. He and Fred Heater, of Altoona, the Western Union lineman, were engaged in putting in a couple new poles at the Beech Creek crossing at the lower end of town to carry the wires across the road. After the poles were in position Killman and Heater each climbed one to adjust the wires. While Killman was in the act of taking up the slack, the wire broke. He fell backward, but fortunately had one of his legs hooked around the guy wire, and in this condition slid to the ground, a distance of about forty-five feet, receiving little or no injury. It can be readily seen that the guy wire was the only thing that saved Mr. Killman from a horrible and instant death. He is certainly to be congratulated upon his escape from an untimely end.

UNION MEETING LAST NIGHT.

A New and Important Movement—Rev. Josiah Strong, of New York, spoke.

A union meeting was held in the Methodist church last evening which was addressed by Rev. Josiah Strong, general secretary of the Evangelical Alliance for the United States. There is a new reform movement on foot looking to the moral and intellectual growth of the people. The greatest need of the times is the education of public opinion and of the popular conscience If reform must succeed it must reach those who are indifferent. But how?

If the indifferent must be educated by the truth and are too indifferent to buy it or to go after it, they must be reached by those who are sufficiently interested to carry it to them.

The various young people's organizations of the United States, such as the Christian Endeavor Societies, Epworth Leagues, etc., now include between four and five million members. Here is a vast power, as yet largely latent but which can be easily utilized.

It is now proposed to the pastors of every community to district the same, to enlist their young people as messengers, and to assign one to each district for the monthly distribution of leaflets. The bicycle makes it entirely feasible to reach the scattered houses of country districts. If one in a hundred of these young people should distribute a dozen leaflets a month, they would scatter over 5,000,000 in a year, at least one half of which would reach families who never attend church, who take no religious paper and who presumably see no reform literature.

Of course the value of the work will depend on the value of the literature. There will be a series on good citizenship for foreign Americans, discussing: 1. The meaning and value of naturalization. 2. The rights of the naturalized citizen. 3. The duties of the naturalized citizen. 4. The value of a vote. 5. Fundamental principles of American Institutions, and the like. These will be translated into as many languages as may be necessary. There will be another good citizenship series for native Americans. Other series will be prepared in the interest of Sabbath Reform, temperance reform, social purity, etc. We are inviting the most eminent jurists, educators and clergymen in the country to prepare this literature.

Through the medium proposed above, public opinion can be not only educated but also expressed by petitions and protests, so that it would amount in effect to the referendum, and be morally certain to determine the action of the people's representatives.

This scheme for the education of public opinion and of the popular conscience in any needed direction has been presented in about fifteen cities, and in every instance the pastors have voted to act on the suggestions made, and have appointed committees with a view to the organization of the work.

SORE THROAT.

In a letter to Dr. Hartman, dated Dec. 27th, 1896, George A. Blanchard, of Washington, Ga., writes: "My throat had been in the habit of getting sore every year for the last twenty years, and if any medical skill did me any good it was so little I did not know it. Two years ago my wife was down sick two months, tried two doctors, but the case was a stubborn one of female trouble. I found in Pe-ru-na not only a good, safe remedy for sore throat, but one for weakness and nervous prostration. I quit the doctors and purchased a bottle of Pe-ru-na, and in three days after my wife got up and she has been going ever since, and I have not been bothered with that bad sore throat. It used to last at least fifteen or twenty days. Since we have used your medicine my wife has not lost a single day, and she has gained over fifty pounds."

In a later letter, July 22d, 1897, Mr. Blanchard writes: "All of the sickness we have in the family is when we cannot get Pe-ru-na. We people in the South think Pe-ru-na is a God-sent blessing. I recommended Pe-ru-na to friends of mine that had asthma and one bottle cured them. Whenever Pe-ru-na is used it speaks loudly for itself."

Dr. Hartman, the original compounder of Pe-ru-na, has a recent book on chronic catarrh which will be sent free by The Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.

Ask your druggist for a free Pe-ru-na Almanac for 1898.

DELICATE SCALES.

A Pencil Mark on a Piece of Paper Will Make a Difference in the Weight.

The question most commonly asked by visitors in a chemist's laboratory is "How small a thing can you weigh on your scales?" It conveys little meaning to tell the average person that a good pair of chemist's balances will weigh accurately to one-tenth of one milligramme; but if he is told that a short hair from a man's head can be easily and accurately weighed the questioner begins to approach the delicacy of adjustment in the scales. More delicate still are the balances used by the assayers. The weighing of gold by the assayer requires the greatest possible accurary since a small speck of that metal on the scale-pan may represent very large quantities of it in the ore or bullion out in the works. The balances made for this "gold work" are the most sensitive of any used for commercial work, and, in fact, are more accurate than those employed by many scientists. Some idea of their accuracy and sensitiveness can be obtained by the following experiment:

A piece of ordinary white paper the size of a cent is carefully weighed and then a short pencil mark is drawn on it and the paper is reweighed. This second weighing will differ from the first by just the weight of the graphite left by the pencil mark. If care is taken and the balances are in perfect adjustment, the result will always be the same, no matter how many times the paper without the pencil mark and the paper with it be weighed. The two weighings always differ by just the same amount, and that is the added weight of the graphite. Of course such balances require the greatest care, for they easily get out of order, and when once disarranged, there is no telling how long it may take to get them adjusted again. It may be two minutes, and it may be two hours. Some good assayers say that it is impossible to work successfully with "gold balances" unless one possesses a large stock of patience and profanity. From what I know of skillful assayers, I should say that this is approximately true.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Bright Men With Rich Wives.

Those who remember the time when Whitelaw Reid and John Hay used to dine together night after night at a little cheap French restaurant on Fourth avenue, New York, must realize that a great change has taken place in the last quarter of a century—from the days of 85c table d'hote dinners to grand banquets given to royalty. This change has been due to two causes, the first—highly creditable to them—mental ability; the second, rich wives. Without the combination of these two the personal successes they have made would have been impossible.

Rev. Sam Jones is telling his audiences just who will go to heaven and who will be denied that privilege. It is hardly necessary to state that those who decline to contribute to the Jones plate are denied places on that gentleman's eligible list.

DURING the past seven years 134 American heiresses have married foreign titles and practically transferred $200,000,000 of American money to foreign land. This is one of the causes of the reduction of circulation in America.

JUST LIKE WOMEN.

THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U. MEETS

There Was Trouble Over the Temple in Chicago But Finally the Clouds Are Rolled Away and the Sun Came Out.

ALL MATTERS WERE ARRANGED

BUFFALO, N. Y., November 1.—Miss Frances E. Williard, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union, called the convention to order today. Devotional exercises were followed by the reading of a report on the Woman's Christian Temperance union school of method and parliamentary used by Miss Anna J. Benjamin, of Michigan. Mrs. A. E. Carmen, of Illinois, read a report of the medal contests. The report on press work was read by Mrs. Minnie Barker Horning, of Illinois. Mrs. Emilie Martin, of New York, supplemented the report with a few words about metropolitan press work. Miss Willard read the Woman's Christian Temperance union motto: "So tell the world's story to-day, as to make the world better to-morrow.

Mrs. E. D. Ingalls, of Missouri, read a paper an narcotics, urging congress to a law which would enable states to enact anti-cigarette laws.

Mr. S. B. Oberholtzer, of Pennsylvania, read a report on school savings banks.

Mrs. Mary Moore, of New York, read a report on unfermented wine at sacraments.

Mrs. Frances Barnes, who has had charge as general secretary of the "Y" branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, has resigned in order to go abroad to take charge of Woman's Christian Temperance union work in Europe. Mrs. Ella A. Boyle, of Staten Island, succeeds her.

From 2 o'clock this afternoon until 7.30 o'clock the delegates held continuous session behind closed doors at the Church of Our Father and discussed with much warmth the report of Mrs. Matilda B. Carse on the Chicago temple. Miss Sarah Johnson, financial secretary of the temple, presented her report, of which the following is an abstract:

Balance on hand November I, 1896, $23, 129.85; amounts received in gifts November 1, 1896, to October 18, 1897 $14,-810.99; interest, $23·89; note, $500; total, $38,494.43. Various expenditures, $9,-703,38.

Mrs. Katharine Lente Stevens, of Massachusetts, one of a committee recently sent to Chicago to investigate Temple matters, along with other affiliated interests of the union, reported that the income of the Temple, if entirely rented, would be $175,000 a year. Its annual expenses, including interests would be $125,-000. About one-fourth of the building had been unrented last year and about one-third this year.

Mrs. Carse was then called upon to answer hundreds of questions, relevant and irrelevant regarding the finances of the Temple, most of which were covered in her report.

Mrs. Susan S. Ferrenden, of Massachusetts, moved to refer the Temple matter to a committee of seven to report to the general officers. This was defeated as was also a motion to refer to the executive committee. "Let's settle the matter now," said a dozen delegates as fast as they could secure recognition. A motion to adopt the report of Mrs. Carse was piled three deep with ammendments.

"I ask the president to state her plans," said Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, of Illinois. Miss Willard objected, but finally said:

"I have no great plan. I believe we must not give up the Temple. I know it would be the death of some of us. I just thought I would go to some rich people who have been a little friendly with me and ask them to help us. I don't know about owning the Temple, but I do want to keep a controlling interest in it. I believe it's going to pay a fine margin. If I did not I'd not try to raise the money. I thought I would go out and see what I could do. I am not going to make any appeal to the local unions, but of course if they set up nights and hanker to give, well, then al right."

One after another the complex amendments that had piled up were cleared away and the vote came on the original motion to adopt the report. It was carried by an easy majority. Miss Willard suggested Miss Cornelia Dow, daughter of General Neal Dow, as custodian of the trust fund, and the convention approved.

Then came a resolution offered orignally by Mrs. Marion H. Dunham, of Iowa, pledging support in the work of raising the money. After passing through a series of amendments and codifications it was adopted as follows:

"That in view of the pledge of support of our leader, and from the fact that Mrs. Carse has $123.000 pledged with promises of $200,000, we pledge our support and co-operation to secure $300,000 to be given Miss Dow as custodian to hold until she shall have enough money to retire the bonds."

During the session Mrs. Carse reported for the Woman's Temperance Publishing association and Mrs. Margaret Inglehart, of Illinois, presented the report of the National Temperance hospital, both of which were adopted.

CORRESPONDENCE

State College Notes.

Mrs. Wm. Miller and infant daughter of Millheim, are at present the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Harter.

A stag dance was given in the armory on Saturday night, a collection was taken for the benefit of the band.

Dentist John F. Harter will move into his new home which has just been completed this week.

The new public school was dedicated here on Friday (Oct.· 29th,) there was a large crowd of people attended. Rev. Colfelt addressed the audience in his pleasant and able manner. Prominent among the speakers were Prof. Jackson, Prof. Gill and Dr. Glenn, of this place, and Prof. Gramley of Rebersburg Pa. The State College brass band furnished the music for the occasion. Old Glory was run to the top of the flag staff and the cheering of the people at the sight of the stars and stripes could be heard at Lemont

"The Students of this place have been obliged to carry the blame for every thing out of order that has occured here for the last year. But at last the right parties have been caught right in the act. About 9:30 o'clock on Saturday night six young men of the town tried to carry C. L. Croyle's barber sign away, but were caught at the mischief by S. H. Springer who is in the employ of Croyle. Springer ordered the sign to be dropped, which was done in very short order, and Springer was surrounded but he made things so warm for the Muckers that they concluded to practice their Deviling at some one else."

The strength of State's foot-ball team has been increased considerably during the past week. All the injured men, namely Hayes, Diehl and Cartwright, have about recovered and are able to go in the game as usual, and this in itself adds materially to the playing power. But, aside from this fact, State has been coached at last in the way she should have been earlier in the season, that is more on mass plays and interference. State has generally put up a very fair game for offense and defense, aside from her interference. She has always relied too much on the speed of her men, and allowed the runner with the ball to fight his own way through the opposing eleven men. At last she has realized that this will not win many games, and now the coaching has been mainly in the matter of interference, and the runner with the ball has the benefit of half a thousand pounds of beef as a shield around him. The men have decided to use both heads and shoulders in the remaining games to be played this season, and to play to win.

Unionville News.

Rev. George Basley, an ex-slave, a lecturer and traveling preacher, lectured in the Union church. His subject was "The Origin of the African Race," including a description of his escape from slavery. An audience of literary persons and others interested, assembled and listened to an able and interesting discourse on the above named subject.

Prof. R. D. Owen held a musical institute lasting one week and ended with a concert on the last night. The institute was well patronized, a large number enrolling their names as members. Those who participated are deeply interested and will continue their studies under the directorship of J. Wilbur Smith.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lucas died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Milton Peters, on Tuesday forenoon. She had been in ill health for sometime; about a month ago she sustained injuries resulting from a fall since which time she has been confined to her bed. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon from the home of her daughter.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Thomas J. Taylor, a highly respected citizen and who has been engaged in the weaving of carpet for a number of years, had a parayletic stroke and is now confined to his bed. We hope he may soon recover.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens have put a new roof on their house and now it is undergoing the work of re-painting.

Mrs. Henshey has added to the attractiveness of her residence by adding a fresh coat of paint.

The election went off quietly, no demonstration only a large number of vehicles and persons from the rural districts were in town.

Many of our people voted for Swallow.

Owen Underwood held a public sale of personal property consisting principally of cows and sheep. There was a large attendance and the high prices which his cattle brought, speak forcibly of the high estimation which all hold for Mr. Underwood as the owner of a superior grade of cattle.

Mr. A. J. Griest, our popular merchant, is now seen on the streets supported by two crutches. An attack of rheumatism is the cause.

Miss Carrie De Long, of Romola, is the guest of Misses Grace and Kate Smith.

Miss Estella Harpster, from near Port Matilda, is the guest of her cousin, E. J. Williams.

Howard Hailings.

Mrs. John Lauth, of St. Louis, Missouri, was a guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Henderson, on Walnut street, a few days last week.

Mrs. David Pletcher was the guest of friends in Bellefonte over last Friday.

Messrs. Abe Weber and Orrin Brickley transacted business in Bellefonte on last Thursday.

Mrs. Sue Noll arrived home from McGee's Mills and Warriors Mark last Saturday evening, where she made quite an extensive visit among her many friends and relatives.

Rev. John W. Forrest, who was formerly pastor of the M. E. church of this place, but who is now stationed at Glenn Hope, made a short visit to our town last week.

Mr. Charles Packer has returned home from a visit among friends in Milton.

Mr. D. P. McKinney spent Sunday at his home on Walnut street.

Miss Alice Bergstresser and her father, of Hublersburg, transacted business in our town on last Thursday.

Mr. Philip Loder who is employed as bookkeeper for a large Pittsburg firm, spent a few days with relatives this week.

Mr. Al Kline, who is employed in Pittsburg, has returned home where he will make a short visit.

Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. King and her daughter, and Mrs. Klinefelter, of Williamsport, are at present visiting at the home of Mr. Thomas Butler, on Main street.

Mrs. Waslin, the evangelist from Perkasie, Bucks county, preached to a large and attentive audience in the United Evangelical church last Sunday evening.

Oh, How They Hurt.

Neuralgic pains are often so acute, that the poor sufferer becomes, almost, frenzied with the intensity of the pain. Salvation Oil will instantly relieve and effectually cure neuralgia, so there is no reason why a moment's pain should be endured. Mr. Jacob Klein, 1036 Main St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "My wife suffered from neuralgia for seven years and since she used Salvation Oil, she has not had a spell. I think it is the best liniment I have ever tried, and I would not be without a bottle of it in the house. I had the rheumatism for five years and had tried a great many liniments, and must say that Salvation Oil did me more good than any other remedy." Salvation Oil is sold everywhere for 25 cents.

Peppered With Shot.

David Heickle, a young man living near Beech Creek, accidentally shot himself in the face while out hunting on Saturday. In placing the gun on a stump on which he was standing, the weapon slipped off, striking the hammer and discharing it, sending a load of fine shot up over his face. The flesh was lacerated in a terrible manner. Dr. Tibbins was called to dress the wounds.

WHAT ROYALTY ENDURES.

Discomforts That Court Etiquette Imposed on the Czar and His Suite.

Those who imagine that all is couleur de rose for crowned heads little know the immense inconveniences and discomforts with which they are frequently obliged to put up by very reason of their exalted position. No more striking demonstration of this could well be found than is to be met with in the recital of the Russian Imperial family's trials at the time of the visit to Balmoral. The Emperor and the Empress, with the little Grand-duchess Olga, who was then about eight months old, left Denmark in the imperial yacht Standart, crossed the German Ocean and ran up the River Dee, coming to anchor about seventeen miles from the castle. They were met by the Prince of Wales, and his suite. A drizzling rain was falling as the imperial party disembarked, and hardly had they taken their places in the landaus—the Empress in the most dainty of white, lace-trimmed gowns, and the Emperor and his suit in their magnificent gold embroidered uniforms—when an order was given for the tops of the carriages to be thrown open, and despite the steady downpour into which the drizzle had now turned, the imperial cortege set forth in this manner. After some slight protest on the Empress' part, Her Majesty raised an umbrella, as did also the lady-in-waiting, who had the care of baby Olga; and so, between alternations of drizzle and pouring rain, the seventeen miles were accomplished, gaping crowds lining the entire way to witness this most uncomfortable passage of royalty.

There was, however, consolation in the thought that, once the castle was attained, their trouble would be over. Vain hope! At the castle entrance stood a Court Chamberlain, who as each carriage drove up informed its occupants that Her Majesty requested the immediate attendance of its occupants in the great drawing room; and, all drenched as they were from the watery drive, they passed into the Queen's presence, the little Grand-duchess alone being carried at once to her apartment.

Seated on a large round ottoman in the centre of the room, her black draperies standing out about her in something of the form of a haystack, with the Princesses drawn up in a half-circle beyond, the Queen awaited the arrival of her imperial grandchildren, and most cordial and affectionate was her greeting when they appeared. Just as all were congratulating themselves upon their final release being close at hand, dinner was announced, and, taking the Emperor's arm, the Queen led the way immediately to the dining-room. Nor were the troubles of the guests ended with the dinner, for no sooner had the Queen and Empress retired with their ladies than the Prince of Wales led the Emperor and his suite to the smoking-room, where for a good half hour they stood gazing with longing eyes at the low Turkish divans and

SPAIN AND UNCLE SAM.

All is Serene and There Will be No Fighting Between Them.

THE NOTE FROM THE BIG DONS

It is Looked Upon at Washington as Eminently Satisfactory Has Not As Yet Been Before the Cabinet.

A QUESTION OF AUTONOMY

MADRID, October 28.—The following reforms for Cuba, it is understood have been formerly passed upon and approved by the Spanish cabinet. The chamber of deputies is to consist of between forty and fifty members, a deputy for every 40,000 inhabitants. The governor general is to choose from this chamber five members to form an executive committee, consisting of a president and ministers of the interior, finance, justice and public works. The governor general of Cuba is to have the right to veto legislation.

WASHINGTON, October 28.—The Spanish reply to Minister Woodford's note concerning Cuba, which was received here yesterday, will be laid before the cabinet at the regular meeting to-morrow. Meanwhile the members of the president's official family have not seen the message. It has been, however, talked of informally between the president and several of the cabinet ministers, and it may be positively stated that the administration regards the note so far as its tenor is revealed by the abstract cabled by Mr. Woodford, as being conciliatory and not calculated to breed an issue. It can also be stated that gratification is felt that the answer was forthcoming within so short a period of time after the delivery of Mr. Woodford's note, having regard to the intervention of the Spanish cabinet crisis and change. The acts already performed by the news cabinet towards a correction of some of the evils of which we complain in Cuba are regarded as an earnest intention of the Spanish government to faithfully carry out the entire reform program and if there should be a speedy alleviation of the frightful condition of the unfortunate reconcentradoes in Cuba through a prompt revocation of Weyler's concentration order it is felt that the government will have little further to ask.

HAVANA, October 28.—General Weyler will leave Havana to-morrow on the Montserrat. He will be accompanied only by his general staff officers and aides de camp. There will be no other passengers on the steamer.

At 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, previous to the embarking of the general, there will be a great popular manifestation in his honor. The volunteers, according to the program, will take a prominent part in demonstration.

It is announced from Spanish headquarters that a local guerrilla force of Pinar Del Rio has surprised two insurgent camps at Pico and Pajaro, province of Pinar Del Rio, resulting in the killing of the insurgent major, Antonio Socarros, a well known leader; Lieutenant Viceste Lopez and several other insurgents.

A Piece of Parchment.

When unwritten on, is not more colorless than the cadaverous countenances of those unfortunate persons whom we are accustomed to call "confirmed invalids." What a misnomer! implying, too, despair, a giving up for lost! As long as the vivifying power of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters can be felt, and that is possible so long as there is no absolute collapse of the faculties, fresh vitality can be infused into wasted, feeble frames; color and flesh can be brought back to wasted, pallid cheeks with this grand sheet anchor of the debilitated and the sickly. It is a tonic of the greatest potency and the utmost purity, and a remedy for and preventive of dyspepsia, bilious, malarious, rheumatic, nervous and kidney complaints. Appetite and sleep are greatly aided by it; it counteracts the effects of undue fatigue, or excitement, and nullifies the often perilous consequences of exposure in inclement weather or damp clothing.

—The tramp is not excited much about the chainless wheel. What troubles him most is the chainless dog that lingers around the back doors of many houses.

As to Bituminous Coal.

Philipsburg Journal: The general public may not know anything concerning the amount of coal yet remaining in the first bituminous basin extending along the Moshannon. The D, or Moshannon vein is nearly exhausted in the northern end of the basin, where it was thick and of good quality, but considerable yet remains in the southern end, where the vein is thin, but of excellent quality. The E never was very profitable, and unlaid only a small area.

Recently developments have proven, and a well known coal man—a thorough expert in such matters—tells us that beyond a doubt the B and A veins will yield many times as much coal as the E and D. They underlie much more territory, and are from three to six feet thick.

As to quality the D is widely known as an excellent iron working and steam coal and makes excellent coke. The B is the leading steam coal and produces good coke. The A is the best domestic coal, being next to good cannel coal in some places, but soft in other localities, and containing more bitumen. Where these veins (i. e. A and B,) are heavy in carbon, they are heavy, the coal lumpy and a very desirable fuel for family use.

Northwest of Philipsburg the A vein has been mined and sold at one and two cents per bushel more than the best Moshannon, and the two railroad mines opened into it prove it can be worked very profitably, and in the future we expect heavy operations in these veins, but perhaps not until quality determines price.

Providence and Prosperity.

We dislike to worry our Democratic friends with figures—it affects them so. But it makes Republicans feel so good that we must quote these. James McElliott, a prosperous farmer of Kingwood district, sold 16 head of lambs last week, averaging 94 pounds per head, and received $4.40 per hundred for them. Dille & Trickett weighed 29 lambs the same day averaging 83 pounds per head. The Lord had to do with the weight of these sheep and the combination of Providence and Republican prosperity made the prices.

MARRIED BY A WOMAN.

A Dramatic Scene in the Probate Court in Chicago.

WHAT A WOMAN TESTIFIED TO

Married a Millionaire and the Woman Whom He Had Betrayed and Now All the Testimony Comes Up.

A QUARREL OVER AN ESTATE

CHICAHO, October 28.—A most dramatic scene was witnessed in the probate court to-day when the hearing of the contest over the estate of the late Allen Gregory was on hearing. Mrs. Lillie D. Gregory, a niece by marriage of the dead cattle man, testified that she was the person who performed the marriage ceremony which, it is alleged, bound Allen Gregory and Martha Clybourn, his sweetheart of forty years. Allen Gregory, known as "the father of the stock yards," died August 2 last, leaving an estate valued at $1,000,000. He was supposed to be without wife or child, and letters of administration were issued to collateral the shares. Soon after this, however, Miss Martha Clybourn, or as she claims, Mrs. Allen Gregory, asked that she be declared the widow and the American Trust and Savings bank appointed administrator. It is said Miss Clybourn entered the home of Mr. Gregory in 1892 as a member of the family. She was generally known as Miss Clybourn although it is asserted that Mr Gregoy on more than one occasion introduced her as his wife. Allen Gregory was 73 years old when he died, while the claimant is about 62 years of age. She is a member of one of the best known families in Chicago.

The witness said that during a visit to her uncle on July 4, 1892, she discovered that he had wronged Miss Clybourn under promise of marriage. She reproached him and urged that he made reparation. Gregory broke down, and it was decided to have the ceremony performed without delay.

Miss Clybourn then told the witness that she had not been to church for many years, and did not know where to find a minister. At this the witness suggested that she was a minister's daughter and could remember the form of the service. According to the witness, she then spoke the words necessary to bind man and wife together, and both her uncle and Miss Clybourn repeated them, Mrs. Gregory then said she pronounced them man and wife by saying. "What God has joined together let no man put asunder."

After this ceremony, Allen Gregory said he felt better but that he did not want the circumstances announced to the relatives, although the witness endeavored to get him to do this.

She Monkeyed With the Cutter.

Philadelphia Record.

In a cigar store at Forty-first street and Westminster avenue there stands upon the counter one of those new electrical cigar cutters. It is a simple arrangement. You merely stick the end of the cigar into one of the small holes and bear down. That starts the mechanism, and a little knife, sharp as a razor, darts forth and snips off the cigar end. A little girl went into the store a few days ago to buy a few cigars for her father. While the proprietor was getting the weeds for her the inquisitive began to monkey with the cigar cutter. Suddenly she uttered a shriek, and pranced around the floor waving a bleeding hand in the air. The proprietor caught her and took a look at the wounded hand. The cutter had snipped off the end of her little finger as clean as a whistle. She was immediateiy hustled to the Presbyterian hospital, where her wound was dressed.

A WARM TIME IN ST. LOUIS.

A Large Building Destroyed by Fire Wednesday Afternoon.

ST. LOUIS, October 27.—A lighted cigarette dropped by a thoughtless clerk is supposed to have started the fire which this afternoon practically gutted the white stone building at the corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets, occupied by the general offices of the Wabash railroad. At 12:50, just after the clerks had returned from their noon recess and were beginning to work, a policeman standing on the corner below noticed a small tongue of flame shoot out from a window in the fifth story of the building, which was used as a storage attic. A puff of black smoke followed and the officer rushed into the building shouting the alarm. Instantly there was a confused rush for every means of exit. Fortunately the stairways were wide, the building in former years having been used for the public school library and the Polytechnic institute. The attic was stored with old papers and documents, and within five minutes was a roaring furnace. During the excitement seven young women employed in one of the inner mailing rooms on the fourth floor had not been notified and were still working unconscious of their peril. When they did discover their situation they found to their horror that it was impossible to reach the stairs, as the stairway was burning fiercely. They appeared at the window and a cry of horror went up from the streets.

"The fire escape," shouted the crowd, and the young women, comprehending, disappeared and a moment later climbed out on the iron platform of the escape. They hesitated, but the advancing flames gave them courage and they started on their descent reaching the street in safety. With the first alarm the real estate agents who occupied the lower floor began removing their books and paper. Fire Chief Swingley sent in a general alarm, but owing to the narrow streets and the net work of wires it required fifteen minutes to hoist and train the stand pipes.

Both the two top floors were doomed, and it was soon apparent that the fire had gained such headway that an order was given to cut the electric wires. Dense throngs blocked every thoroughfare. Without warning the wires were clipped, and in an instant the crowds were madly falling back as flashes of fire sputtered from the ends of the deadly wires that came falling to the ground. Nobody was injured, but a wire struck a fire horse, killing it in its tracks. At 1:50 o'clock the roof fell in with a crash, sending burning embers into the air, which fell on adjoing buildings and started fires, but the promptness of the firemen prevented further conflagrations.

A. R. Field, a clerk, was carrying some books from the first floor when the crash came. Flying debris struck him on the head, tearing it open down to the eyes and nose. His injuries may prove fatal. At 2:30 o'clock the fire was practically under control, and at 5 o'clock with the exception of patches of burning embers had been extinguished. Nothing was left of the two top floors but broken walls, while the three lower floors suffered damage from water and falling debris.

The fire came so suddenly that the Wabash company was prevented from saving anything. Every record in the office of the chief engineer, rights of way, real estate deeds and surveys of every description were destroyed. An officer of the company estimates their loss at $500,000. Statements place valuation of building at $400,000. The Wabash company had occupied new quarters before the fire was under control.

Nine Sheep Killed.

Tuesday evening the local freight on the Central railroad ran into a flock of sheep near Mackeyville. As the locomotive was approaching Brown's culvert, the engineer whistled to frighten the sheep away. Instead the animals huddled together on the track and the train plowed through the flock. Nine of the animals were killed. They belonged to Morton Brown and were valued at thirty-five or forty dollars.

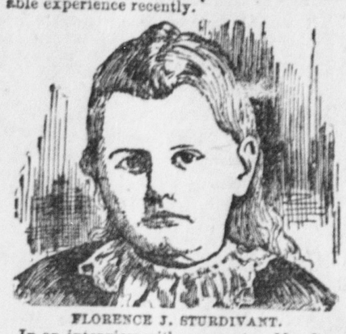
A Thrilling Rescue.

A YOUNG LIFE SAVED IN A REMARKABLE MANNER.

Florence Sturdivant, of Grindstone Island, Saved from an Untimely Death—Her Dangerous Predicament.

From "On The St. Lawrence," Clayton, N. Y.

Among the Thousand Islands is one called Grindstone. It is seven miles long and three wide. The inhabitants of this island are a well-informed class of people who devote their energies to farming and quarrying for a livelihood. In the home of one of these islanders resides Florence J. Sturdivant, the four-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Sturdivant. She had a remarkable experience recently.



FLORENCE J. STURDIVANT.

In an interview with a reporter Mr. Sturdivant said: "Florence was taken sick in February, 1896, with scarlet fever and we immediately called a physician. After two weeks the fever subsided but Florence was left with a very weak back. Severe pains were constantly in the back and stomach. The difficulty seemed to baffle the efforts of the physician.

"Finally at the end of four months of treatment, we found our patient completely prostrated. At this time we called an eminent physician, who agreed with the diagnosis of our physician. He prescribed a course of treatment and we followed it faithfully for three months, but instead of improving, Florence failed.

"A brother of my wife, who resided in Canada, but was visiting us, advised us to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I purchased a box of the pills and began to give them to Florence. This was in October, 1896. After using the pills a short time we could see an improvement. Her strength began to return and her appetite was restored. When she had taken one box the pains in her back and stomach ceased and her recovery seemed certain.

"We eagerly purchased a second box of pills and watched with delight the change for the better that was being wrought daily. Florence finally became strong enough to walk a little. She gained in flesh and strength rapidly. By the time she had used three boxes of the pills she was evidently well. We continued the treatment using another box, the fourth, to prevent the possibility of a recurrence of the difficulty.

"We cannot praise too highly the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I am positive that without their use our child would have been a confirmed invalid."

Cured of Spasms by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

THE many cases of spasms, St. Vitus dance and epilepsy that Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine has cured, would alone give this great remedy wide reputation. Mrs. Walter A. Steward, 773 Broadway, Kingston, N. Y., says March 3, 1896: "In 1893, while on a visit to friends our little girl was taken with spasms. We hastened home to our family physician. He did all he could but failed. We called several physicians but the spasms continued, her tongue became partially paralyzed and the doctors said she would never talk again. Night and day we watched the poor little sufferer and tried every remedy we saw advertised for such cases but got no relief. We began giving Dr. Miles' Nervine, and after taking four bottles she was running about as well and happy as ever."

THE GREAT WRECK.

Various Theories Advanced as to the Cause of the Disaster.

CORONER'S INQUEST HAS BEGUN

No Information of Importance Has Been Elicited and the Meeting Goes Over Until Thursday of Next Week.

WAS THE LOCOMOTIVE AT FAULT

COLD SPRING, N Y., October 27.—Chief Detective Humphrey, of the New York Central railroad was asked to-day thatif the arrest of any person was contemplated on suspicion of having caused the wreck of the state express. Mr. Humphrey admitted that the railroad suspects that the roadbed was blown out by dynamite but refused to divulge any information. He said that his instructions were to report the result of his investigation personally to president Depew. The diver who was at work to-day, searching in the river for the bodies of Engineer Foyle and Stenographer McKay had no success. He says that the bodies are either buried in the mud or have been washed away. Two divers, assisted by a dredge will continue the search to-morrow. The body of the woman known as No. 12 is still unidentified.

Coroner William T. Wood and jury to-night commenced their inquest into the cause of the death of the twenty victims of the New York Central disaster of last Sunday morning. The inquest was held in the town hall, which was filled with witnesses and spectators. The coroner was assisted by the district attorney as examining counsel. The secretary of the state railroad commission and stenographer of the commission were present, but took no part in the proceedings except to make notes of the testimony. It was announced that the commissioners will make a further investigation later. Several witnesses, all railroad employes, testified. Their stories agreed with those already given in these dispatches. The hearing lasted one hour and fifteen minutes and was productive of no information whatever bearing upon the cause of the disaster. The inquest was adjourned until November 4.

NEW YORK, October 27.—General Manager Toucey, of the New York Central, believes that the disaster was caused by a break in the engine's machinery. He said to-day:

"I believe something broke on the engine and plowed the ground and jarred the roadbed so that it loosened and slid into the river. The sudden stopping of the speed of the train caused the cars to run up on each other and helped to loosen the roadbed, That is what I believe caused the accident. That is the conclusion I reached from my investigation of the facts. If there had been a dynamite explosion before the train reached that place the engine could not have passed over it and seventy-five feet beside, as it did."

Preparing for Grange Meetings.

During the past month Hon. Leonard Rhone, master of the state grange, has been hard at work preparing the programme for the forthcoming meetings of the state and national grange, to be held in Harrisburg from November 10th to the 20th. Mr. Rhone says there is now no doubt but that this year's gathering will be the largest and most important ever held in the history of the grange; and certain it is that the reports which will be presented at that time will show at least 100 per cent. increased progress during the past year. There is no estimating the good that has been done in the way of legislation secured throug hthe influence of the grange all over the nation at the last sessions of the state legislatures, and in congress some good measures were passed at the instigation of the farmers, or their representatives. But, continued Mr. Rhone we are not yet content.

There must be a greater equalization in the tax laws; there must be a revolution in our political methods which will purge the ballot-box of much of its corruptness, and questions on those important subjects will be discussed and ways and means devised whereby such a state of affairs can be brought about. The farmers never felt in a better mood than they do this fall. Much of it is due to the abundant crops of everything, but no little is attributable to the good work of the grange, a potent influence which is now being realized and felt more than ever before: Mr. Rhone expects to have the full programme for both the above meetings completed in a few days.

AMONG THE INDIANG.

Some More News From the Scenes of Disturbance.

WOLCOTT, Cal., October 29.—A courier has just arrived here, bringing a message from Game Warden Wilcox to Sheriff Nieman for help. The Indians have burned the Sons' ranch, near Cross Mountain, and have killed one—Cable—a messenger sent out by Wilcox. The latter tried to arrest the Indians for violating the game laws. They resisted and began firing. Five Indians were killed and sub-Chief Star mortally wounded. The Indians had stacks of green deer hides in their possession and were slaughtering on all sides.

The fight occurred ninety miles west of Steamboat Springs, in Routt county. One hundred determined men are now on their way to aid the sheriff. Settlers are gathering on Vaughn's ranch and at Day, Col. The Indians are threatening to pillage and murder.

State troops may be called for if the Sheriff finds that matters are as serious as reported.

DENVER, Col., October 29.—The following dispatch has been received from Captain Wright, Ninth cavalry, last night:

JENSEN, Utah, October 29.—News confirmed by Frank Pariel, Uintah Indian, by whom I send this, states that the five Indian men were in the party attacked by twenty-five wardens, near the river, four days ago. Killed two bucks, who were Uncle Sam's brother and Cincrest. Two squaws were wounded, Wardens caught one Indian some distance from the camp and told him they were going to kill him. Indian did not understand English. Wardens attacked them in camp. They think one warden was killed. All Indians are coming this way. Had no other trouble. Expect we will meet them with wounded tomorrow. There may be others in the mountains who know nothing of the affair. Commanding officer at Fort Du Chesne telegraphs no excitement in reservations.

A SON IS BORN.

Ex-President Cleveland Is Once More a Happy Father.

PRINCETON, N. J., October 28.—A son was born to the household of Grover Cleveland former president of the United States, at noon to-day. It is said the new comer resembles his parents in point of good health, but neither Mr. Cleveland nor the three family physicians will say anything in regard to the newcomer other than that he is getting along nicely and is a fine boy. All afternoon Mr. Cleveland has received at his home the many callers who wished to pay their respects to him in honor of the occasion. Some have congratulated the ex-president personally, but many preferred to leave their cards, with congratulations and best wishes for mother and son. A great many telegrams of congratulations were received. Among the first to profler congratulations by wire were Joseph Jefferson, E. C. Benedict, former Secretary Thurber and former Secretary Carlisle.

Princeton undergraduates have taken a great interest in the new Princetonian. The fact that a cleveland heir was born was announced during the 'Varsity practice this afternoon. There was a large gathering of undergraduates on the field watching the 'Varsity and scrub teams practice. When the announcement was made three Princeton cheers were given for the boy, three for the mother and three more for the father. It is probable that the undergraduates will serenade former President Cleveland and his heir at some future date. On the College bulletin board in front of Reunion hall was posted this notice:

"Grover Cleveland, jr., arrived to-day at 12 o'clock. Will enter Princeton with the class of 1916 and will play centre rush on the championship foot ball teams of 1915, '17, '18, '19." The baby's sisters are Ruth, Ester and Marion, whose ages are 7, 5 and 3 years.

Clergymen and Vestry Dine.

On Tuesday Oct. 26 Rev. R. E. Wright, pastor of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, gave a dinner at the Bush House from 2 until 4 o'clock, in honor of the visiting clergy who were attending the sessions of the arch deaconry of Williamsport, and the vestry of St. John's Episcopal church of Bellefonte. About thirty guests were present and the affair passed off very successfully.

The arch deaconry had been in session in the Episcopal church since Monday and closed their meetings on Wednesday night, and departed for their homes. The meetings were very interesting and largely attended. The visiting rectors were greatly pleased with Bellefonte and the hospitality of her people.

ALASKA'S MAGIC LAKE.

The Water is Warm in Winter and Cold in Summer—A Mecca for Fish.

The richly laden places of the Klondyke are by no means the only things marvellous about Alaska.

There is a lake up there, not very far from Dawson City, which has been christened Lake Selawik by its discoverer, Father Tossi, a missionary among the native Alaskan, which besides being interesting to the wonder lovers who are staying at home, will unquestionably prove a wonderful blessing during the coming Winter to the thousands of gold-seeking Americans who have never passed an eight-months Winter amidst real ice and snow.

It is generally supposed that everything within the Arctic circle freezes up seven or eight months in the year. that the rivers and lakes are completely frozen over, and that the fishes die off or seek other waters. But none of these things is true of Lake Selawik.

This lake is sixty miles long and about fifteen miles in width. It has no evident communication with the ocean, yet when the ocean is at its high tide on the shores of Alaska, up goes the water of Lake Selawik, and when the tide of the ocean goes out, down comes the height of the waters of the lake.

Notwithstanding this sympathy with ocean waters, the water of Lake Selawik is fresh at all times, and it tastes like the sparkling spring water on the farm. But the most remarkable reature of this lake is the fact that it never freezes over in the coldest weather, and the colder the atmosphere in its neighborhood becomes, the warmer its waters seem to become.

For this reason, Lake Selawik becomes a kind of Mecca in Winter time for all kinds of fishes and water animals which are found in the various rivers that pour into the lake during Summer. The waters of the lake swarm with fish, and the improvident gold seeker from the United States, who has failed to strike that "pile" he anticipated, and who, owing to the fabulous prices of eatables in Alaska in Winter, would otherwise starve to death, has only to borrow a sled and a couple of dogs and go over to Selawik, where, in a couple of hours, he can kill with a boat hook more salmon than he can cut in a fortnight, for after the capture of the fish the excessively cold climate keeps them frozen until they are ready to be eaten.

Lake Selawik will also relieve the miners from the disagreeable necessity, which they contemplate at present, of spending the whole Winter without taking a bath. The water in Winter is of just the right temperature to make bathing both wholesome and agreeable.—New York Journal.

MONEY ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

$5,000 Found Tucked Away in Old Shoes and Stockings and Other Places.

For nearly half a century there lived near Columbia, Mo., on a fine farm of 168 acres a brother and sister, William and Julia Barnes, both deaf mutes. They lived utterly alone and little was known of them except that they were a remarkable pair. Neither had ever seen a railroad train and knew little of modern civilization. They dressed in the style of fifty years ago.

William Barnes, the older of the pair, died recently at the age of 77 years, and the sister was prostrated with grief. She refused to see visitors and remained for days alone in her room with the door locked. It was reported in the neighborhood that a large sum of money was in the house and it was feared that the place would be raided. James English and Parker Barnes of that neighborhood, decided to investigate. They searched the house and found it like a Klondike gold mine. Money was everywhere—under the carpets, over the doors and windows, tucked into old shoes and stockings. They found gold, silver, and bills, besides a number of valuable notes and papers. In all $5,000 was found. The Public Administrator was informed, and on the belief that the aged sister of the deceased was irresponsible, the money was placed in a bank. The parents of the strange pair lived and died on the same farm. —Kansas City Times.

Parlor Table Sprouting.

In the parlor of G. J. McBrian, of Oakland, Cal., stands a three-legged table, big enough to leaf to hold a heavy dictionary or bible, that is attracting the attention of the neighbors. The table has been in the McBrian's parlor more than a year. It has been varnished and revarnished many times. The table has never been wet, and it has not received an excessive amount of sunshine. Nevertheless, two or three weeks ago tiny buds formed on two of the legs, on the table, and now vivid green sprouts have taken place. These sprouts have become slender branches, covered with leaves. It is a remarkable manifestation of the virility of plant life under adverse circumstances. The McBrians do not known how old the table is.—New York World.

THE NATURALIST.

CHAPTER I.

"Now, Mary, I have spoken!" Mr. Peel threw himself back in his chair as if that settled the matter once for all.

"I heard you, dear," sweetly responded Mrs. Peel; "and now listen to me. I have accepted Herr Schmidt's offer, and he will enter the adjoining house as tenant to-morrow."

"Not if I know it, madam!" shouted Phineas, jumping from his chair and bringing his fist down on the table. "Do you think I am to have Rhyd cottage turned into a menagerie, and my garden into a howling wilderness. The house may remain tenantless forever, but Herr Schmidt and his monstrosities shall not enter there."

"Herr Schmidt, my dear, is merely a naturalist."

"I know it!" stormed Phineas. "I've heard of these plaguey naturalists before. I've no desire to come down stairs some fine morning to find a ring-tailed monkey sitting on the window-sill, acting as referee while the kangaroos and crocodiles play leapfrog over the flower beds. No madam! No naturalists for Phineas Peel."

Pretty Mrs. Peel never allowed her temper to get the better of her. She laughed softly at her husband's fears and did not alter her determination in the least.

"Has it slipped your memory, Phineas," she asked, "that Rhyd cottage is a portion of my property? If I choose to let it to a naturalist—even though he be a foreigner—I am perfectly justified in doing so,"

This was true enough, and Phineas calmed down.

"Herr Schmidt's collection of monstrosities, as you call it," went on Mrs. Peel, "probably contains nothing more dangerous than a death's head moth in a bottle. Anyhow, I have no intention to disappoint him."

"But I—"

"You will treat him with the respect due from one gentleman to another, Phineas," broke in Mrs. Peel. "And now, dear, we'll dismiss the subject."

Phineas was—though at times he doubted it—a lucky fellow. He carried off a young and handsome woman from a host of suitors.

Why Marq Morsden had chosen to bestow her hand and fortune on such a plain, every-day sort of a fellow as the diminutive Phineas Peel was always a mystery to her acquaintances. The wedding was an accomplished fact before her relatives had recovered from the shock caused by the announcement of her engagement.

Mary appeared to be happy enough too. Phineas, taken as a whole, was not a bad sort of a fellow. He was jealous, that was true, but his wife came to regard that as an extra proof of his devotion.

Had the proposed tenant of Rhyd cottage been an aged, decrepit, broken-down old man, Phineas would have stretched out the right hand of fellowship. But alas! Herr Schmidt was young and handsome—far too handsome, Phineas thought.

"Very well, Mary," said Phineas, taking his hat from the peg and making for the door; "you have overruled me as usual, and must be prepared for the consequences. In less than a week we shall have the house and garden overrun with every conceivable variety of reptile—from the beastly lizard to the boa constructor."

And Phineas stalked indignantly forth with the merry laughter of his wife ringing in his ears.

CHAPTER II.

A month or more had passed, and so far, the fears of Phineas had proved to be groundless. Herr Schmidt's "monstrosities" had been kept well within bounds, and as yet Mr. Peel had not seen so much as a strange caterpillar in his garden, which never looked better.

However, he was not happy. He had taken an aversion to the new tenant from the first, and would never be satisfied until he had got rid of him.

"Confound the fellow," muttered Phineas, one evening as he sat on an upturned bucket behind the peasticks, "he's prowling about on the other side of the hedge again. Hope he won't catch sight of me, for I'm about tired of his oily tongue, and eternal smile. Hullo! what the deuce is the meaning of this?"

Down the garden path tripped Mrs. Peel. The naturalist was evidently expecting her, and greeted her with a smile that almost brought tears into the eyes of the furious Phineas.

"Good-evening," he said. "You vos joost a leetle late!"

It was soon evident that this was not the first chat indulged in over the boundary hedge. Though Phineas strained his ears, he could not catch the drift of the conversation. Like a flash, he remembered that Mary had often of late taken a stroll in the garden at dusk. Was this the explanation?

Phineas had been glaring at the couple from behind the peasticks for ten minutes or so, when he saw his wife take a rosebud from his favorite tree and hand it over the hedge with

A LAY OF THE SUMMER.

Oh! I'd like to go with Nansen
To the Pole,
Where the grizzly bears are dancin'
And they roll
In a chilly, frapped ocean
With a rhythmic sort of motion
That is droll!
Where Mrs. Seal cavorting
Wears her furs,
And Mr. Seal, though sporting,
Ne'er demurs;
Where the wind is wild, and freely
O'er the country found by Greely
Ever stirs—
O'er the country found by Greely
Ever stirs!

Oh! I'd like to be a blooming
Esquimau,
All his frozen airs assuming,
Don't you knaul
Then farewell to moods so melting,
With a snowball I'd be pelting
Every waul
All of Greenland's icy mountains
I would do;
Drinking drinks that frozen fountains
Only brew.
There I know they'd ne'er be trotin'
Out that query, "Is it hot en-
Ough for you?"

MILLIONS IN PRUNES.

Magnitude of One of California's Industries but Little Realized.

The magnitude of the prune industry of California, writes a Los Angeles correspondent of the Chicago Record, is little realized by the people in the Eastern States. In a decade the growing of prunes has gone forward in California by leaps and bounds, and to-day $20,000,000 is invested in it—that is, in lands, trees, irrigation systems, agricultural tools and packing houses.

Ten years ago the total area of bearing prune orchards in California was less than 7,000 acres. In 1888 there were 11,000 acres of bearing prune trees and about 6,000 acres more of young prune orchards. There was an import duty of two and one-half cents a pound on dried prunes in those days, and the growers sold their crops on the trees for sums varying from $35 to $50 a ton. In 1890 the total area of bearing prune orchards was 13,000 acres, and there was an enormous planting of prune trees that year in all of the fruit growing valleys of California, because of the large profit in the industry. Twelve thousand acres of prune orchards were set out in the winter of 1890-91, and 24,000 acres more were planted in the next two years. These orchards have now come into bearing, and the State Board of Horticulture finds that there are 53,000 acres of bearing prune orchards in California to-day and about 8,000 acres more to come into bearing. Conservative estimates put the total crop of California prunes in a favorable year at not less than 90,000 tons. In a few years more a full yield of the fruit in this State will be more than 110,000 tons of green fruit.—New York Herald.

JAPAN'S EXPANSION.

The Only Practical Way for Its Colonization.

It would be wise for Japan in more senses than one to expand, when it must, only along its natural lines of geographical development. It cannot hope to go about the world, as England did, taking up land and planting its race on antipodal shores. There is not much soil unpre-empted, and what there is lies within the spheres of influence of white powers, and they will not tolerate an Oriental trespass. Within its own sphere no one can object. Japan has taken Formosa and finds room there, as a Japanese statesman once observed, for two millions families. Why does it not colonize them. Corea, where Russia has no more rights than Japan, and, morally speaking, not so many, is another place which might be made useful. By settling its surplus people in and near its own empire Japan may call upon them when they are needed, protect them as they may require it, and get the benefit of their industry. In Asia the people can expand and flourish. But in all white countries an Asiatic influx, if it becomes large, inevitably brings popular interference, as witness the American and Australian movements against the Chinese, and the anti-Japanese petition in Canada. What is the use of planting colonies which can never be permanent?—San Francisco Chronicle.

HE MAKES IT RAIN.

St. Swithin, the Saint Who Brings Rain—Who He Is and Why It Rains.

St. Swithin was a venerable old saint with a local habitation and a name. He was tutor to the great King Alfred, and accompanied him to Rome. In A. D. 852 he was consecrated Bishop of Winchester. William of Malmesbury, in his chronicles, says Bishop Swithin built several churches and always travelled through his diocese on foot to avoid the appearance of ostentation.

Swithin died on July 2, A. D. 862, and was buried, according to his own desire, outside the Cathedral, for he had declared that he was not worthy to find a sepulchre within the sacred edifice. But a century later he was canonized by the Pope of Rome, and the monks of Winchester then determined to exhume his body and bury it within the cathedral.

The removal of the body was fixed to take place on July 15, but was delayed in consequence of a heavy fall of rain, which continued without intermission for forty days. And it is from this circumstances that the current belief regarding St. Swithin's Day prevails.—New York Journal.

Not for a number of years has this section experienced such a drouth as is now prevailing. No rain of any amount has fallen for two months. Farmers are compelled to drive stock miles to water as well as haul water for domestic use. Wheat that was sown early, a month to six weeks ago, is not yet up and some fields that have sprouted are becoming very yellow, and it is feared will dry up. Mountain fires are raging, destroying much valuable timber. In some places corn is half husked and fodder hauled in. Potatoes have been raised and much of the surplus crop shipped to eastern markets, the price received being 60c per bushel. Corn is selling for 20c out of the field. All kinds of poultry are low. She Was Happy.

John Hauser, of Linden, and Miss Alice Bastian, of Antes Fort, drove from the bride's home Tuesday to Williamsport, and were married by Rev. Father Golden, in the Catholic church. After the ceremony, while the groom and his best man stopped at the hotel, the bride, attired in white, and with all her wedding finery on, walked to several stores on a shopping errand. She attracted considerable attention, but appeared to be blissfully ignorant of the gaze or the comments of those whom she met.—Lock Haven Democrat.

DEATH OF JOHN CONFER.

Passsed Away in Sugar Valley Sunday Afternoon.

On Monday the sad intelligence reached Bellefonte of the death in Sugar Valley of John Confer, an old citizen of Bellefonte. Mr. Confer and wife had been visiting friends and relatives there for some time past, and were about ready to return home, when on last Friday a week, Mr. Confer was taken with a stroke of paralysis. Everything that loving hands could do was done for him, but all to no purpose, for the angel of death claimed him and he passed to the great beyond sometime Sunday afternoon.

His remains were brought to his home in this place, Monday on the 6:10 train, The funeral was in charge of Gregg Post, although the deceased was not a member.

John Confer was born Dec. 10th, 1845, in Sugar Valley, and was therefore 51 years, 10 months and 20 days old. He has resided in Bellefonte for many years and followed the occupation of a teamster. He was a soldier in the late civil war and served his country with distinction.

Deceased leaves a wife and seven children to mourn the loss of a kind and loving husband and father. The children are: Mrs. Emily Morrison, Mrs. Mary Johnsonbaugh, Mrs. Minnie Sowers, Annie, James, John and Lucy Confer, all of Bellefonte.

A SOCIETY EVENT.

Reception to Mr. and Mrs. Burns Crider, and Debut of Miss May Crider.

Friday evening the handsome residence of F. W. Crider on West Linn street was the scene of a brilliant society event. The occasion was a reception in honor of the home coming of Burns Henderson Crider and his bride, formerly Miss Van Billiard, of Bethlehem; and it also marked the debut of Miss May Crider into society.

Over one hundred invitations had been issued to the friends and acquaintances. The guests were attired in full evening dress and the scene in the brilliantly lighted and handsomely adorned rooms was indeed one that will not soon be forgotten by those present. The rooms were tastefully and artistically adorned with beautifully potted plants and cut flowers. The parlor in white roses and white carnations, the sitting room in red roses and red carnations and the dining room in yellow roses and yellow chrysanthemums,

At 8 o'clock the guests began to arrive and they were gracefully received by Mr. and Mrs. Burns Crider, Miss May Crider and the parents of the young people Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Crider.

A pleasant evening was spent exchanging greetings and in pleasant conversation; many of the young people stayed until after the older guests had departed, and enjoyed the mystic mayes of the dance tripping the light fantastic until the wee small hours. Victory for the Academy.

Our own Bellefonte Academy foot ball team scored a splendid victory Saturday afternoon over the Prep team from the Pennsylvania State College by the score of 8 to 0. Only Father Time saved the college men from a much worse defeat, as the first half ended with the ball in the possession of the Academy and within a yard of the college goal

Another minute and another touch down would have been scored but referee Hayes' whistle stopped them.

The Academy team all through, played a strong game, full of snap and vim, but Henderson, Cummings, Eldredge and Otto deserve mention as doing the best work for the Academy. Cummings was especially fine and there is hardly a team in this vicinity, outside of the big State College team, whose line he could not go through at will. It is safe to say that if he ever goes to college he will be heard from in the football world.

The first touchdown was made by Maurice Otto and he was heartily cheered for his good work. Henderson made the second touch down. The Academy goal was never in danger, and the college boys were fairly outplayed at every point. This is the first time the Preps were ever defeated by the Academy and the latter naturally feel very elated over the result.

The game was played on the glass works meadow, and was witnessed by nearly 500 enthusiastic people; the fair sex being well represented. The State Normal school will play here next Saturday and the friends of the Academy expect great things of them on that occasion. The following was the line up in Saturday's game.

COUNCIL IN SESSION.

Rainy Weather Keeps Councilmen Away.

ONLY FIVE WERE PRESENT

Hillibish, Shortlidge, Valentine, Brachbill and Garrity Were the Faithful Ones.—Much Important Business Transacted.

BILLS TO THE AMOUNT OF $625.50

Monday evening the semi-monthly session of the town council was held. It was called to order shortly after 7 o'clock with President Hillibish in the chair and the following members present: Valentine, Shortlidge, Garrity and Brachbill.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the clerk, Isaac Mitchell, and there being no corrections they stood approved.

Mr. Faxon, through Isaac Mitchell, requested that boardwalks be laid on East High street. There were no written communications.

Chairman Brachbill, of the street committee, reported opening and cleaning sewer in front of L. T. Munson's residence, also one on Howard street and one near Reformed church, on Linn street. Investigated the arc light requested on Bishop street, near Haag Hotel, and reported the matter back to council to decide. Have put arc light at intersection of Curtin and Penn streets. Complaints have been made by citizens of north ward that crossing laid from Lingle's to John P. Harris' house is too flat and too low. Crossing laid on West High street is dished and out of position, according to report of citizens. Curbing in that crossing was not of proper depth. As chairman of street committee is opposed to building street crossings unless let to the lowest bidder, with specifications as to material used and construction of same.

Mr. Shortlidge stated that the reason the North ward crossing was too low was because Boro Engineer Wetzel said that the other crossing across Spring street was too low and that if the new crossing had been put as high as it ought to be, it would have made the grade too steep for a team of horses to drive over coming up Spring street. He also explained the depression in the High street crossing.

There was no report from the village improvement committee. In the absence of Chairman Gerberich there was no report from water committee. Fire and police committee, through Chairman Valentine, reported that new floor at public building had been completed.

Market committee reported collection $4.04 as market fees. Chairman Shortlidge of nuisance committee, spoke in favor of securing a place for dumping garbage and disposing of same.

The report of finance committee was as follows:

Bal due Treasurer Oct. 4, 1897....		$2,821.84
Boro orders pd.	$3,085.34
Water.....	656.81
Interest ..	323.20	4,065.45

Bal due treas. Nov'ber 1, 1897.....		$4,744.47

The request of Thomas Faxon for boardwalk on East High street referred to street committee with orders to proceed according to ordinance.

Mr. Garrity moved that an arc light be erected on Bishop street at the intersection of Penn and Bishop. Seconded by Mr. Brachbill. Mr. Shortlidge moved that an amendment be added providing for a light on Willowbank street. He said that there were but two arc lights in the West ward. This was not accepted. Mr. Valentine moved as an amendment that they lay this work over until they can consult with the Electric light company. This was carried, all voting aye except Mr. Garrity. Mr. Valentine moved that street committee consult with electric light company in regard to readjusting the light schedule.

Street committee was ordered to lay walk in front of Undine house. The street commmittee was ordered to remove all the loose stone off the streets of Bellefonte.

A request was received from C. L. Gates requesting council to furnish a picture of new building to newspaper correspondents so that they could have it inserted in city papers, as it would be an advertisement for boro. It was moved that this matter be left to President Hilibish, and that he furnish a picture of the old and new building, so as to show the progress made.

The following bills were approved and ordered drawn:

John W. Mattern Dead.

John W. Mattern died at his home at Philipsburg at 10 o'clock Saturday evening last. He was sitting in a chair after shaving and preparing for Sunday, and his wife was rubbing his breast, when his head suddenly fell back and he expired almost instantly. The immediate cause of death was the failure of the heart to perform its functions, though he had been a severe and constant sufferer from kidney trouble for a couple years past. He was a few months more than 72 years of age.

John Wareham Mattern was the youngest of a family of nine children of David and Catherine Wareham Mattern. He was born at what was known as the Mattern homestead near Franklinville, and spent all his early life in that community, conducting a general store in Franklinville for a number of years prior to removing to Philipsburg about thirty years ago. After removing to Philipsburg he engaged in lumbering for some time, being associated with Charles Copelin in the operation of a saw mill. Later he engaged in mercantiling, being associated with his brother-in-law, Samuel Miller. At the time of his death he was engaged in the insurance business. Deceased was an active and patriotic citizen and he will be very much missed by the Philipsburg community. He was a prominent and earnest member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and his religious life truly harmonized with his professions.

When a young man deceased was married to Miss Mary Ann Miller, who survives her husband, Two children also survive, viz: Olan Mattern and Mrs. Minnie McKinney, both of Philipsburg.

Cornelly Sentenced.

James Cornelly convicted at the August term of court of setting fire to the armory of Co. B. was sentenced Monday morning by Judge John G, Love to five years and a half in the Western Penitentiary.

Previous to passing sentence Judge Furst, council for defendant, arose and made a plea for the clemency of the court in passing sentence on Cornelly; and also requested that time be given them in which to prepare an appeal to the superior court. The judge then in a few words pronounced sentence and granted the council three days in which to prepare an appeal to the higher court. His attorneys will at once carry the case to the superior court which meets in Williamsport in a few weeks.

Prisoner Escapes at Kane.

William Smith broke jail at Kane a few nights ago. He made his escape by bending the steel bars of his cage with a piece of plank, until there was a space large enough for him to squeeze his body through. After getting out of the cage he lowered a window and was soon at liberty. Smith is charged with passing counterfeit money.

Must Eat All You Shoot.

Hunters will do well to bear in mind that they are not "pot hunters," and that they cannot dispose of any surplus that they have. Therefore when you shoot all your family can consume—quit. The game season opened, as heretofore stated, for all game except rabbits, elk and deer, As many persons labor under the mistaken impression that they can sell game to the consumers, it will be well to disabuse them of that notion. No game can be sold within the state and no game taken out of the state under any pretext whatever.

MRS. DAVID KERR DEAD.

She Died Very Suddenly at her Home Near Center Hill.

Mrs. David Kerr, nee Miss Susan Neff, passed away into the realms of glory on Tuesday morning at five o'clock, the cause of her death coming from paralysis and neuralgia of the heart.

She was a true christian lady in every particular, when she was a little girl only eight years old she gave her heart to Christ, and joined the Methodist church of which she has been a staunch member ever since. When Mrs. Kerr, was yet single she traveled quite extensively, a few years ago she made a tour through the United States and Europe. She was a lady of wealth, but that made not the least bit of difference in her life, for when she would meet a person who had not quite so much of the worlds goods as she, her salutation to them was as cordial as to any other, so in that way she won many warm friends who will weep for her.

We were unable to get her exact age but from some of her friends, we are told she was about fifty four years old. She was born in Potter township and has always lived in Penns valley, she was married about two years ago to Mr. David Kerr, and they have lived very happily together. They have had every thing that money would buy, and every thing that medical aid could do was done to prolong her useful life, but all was in vain, God knew what was best so he took her home.

Her father, mother, and brothers preceeded her to the grave a number of years ago, so she was the only remaining one of that family.

The funeral will take place on Friday morning at ten o'clock. She will be interred in the old family burying ground at Centre Hall. This paper joins in with the friends to extend our heart felt sympathy to her husband in this his hour of trial.

After meals you should have simply a feeling of comfort and satisfaction. You should not feel any special indications that digestion is going on. If you do, you have indigestion, which means not-digestion. This may be the beginning of so many dangerous disesses, that it is best to take it in hand at once and treat it with Shaker Digestive Cordial. For you know that indigestion makes poison, which causes pain and sickness. And that Shaker Digestive Cordial helps digestion and Cures indigestion. Shaker Digestive Cordial does this by providing the digestive materials in which the sick stomach is wanting. It also tones up and strengthens the digestive organs and makes them perfectly healthy. This is the rationale of its method of cures, as the doctors would say. Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

Horse Slipped and Fell.

Monday's Lock Haven Democrat says yesterday about noon, as Liveryman Baum's team from Bellefonte was being driven down Main street to the depot for the Sunday papers, one of the horses slipped on the bricks below Jay street and fell on its side. It was soon on its feet, uninjured.

She Was Happy.

John Hauser, of Linden, and Miss Alice Bastian, of Antes Fort, drove from the bride's home Tuesday to Williamsport, and were married by Rev. Father Golden, in the Catholic church. After the ceremony, while the groom and his best man stopped at the hotel, the bride, attired in white, and with all her wedding finery on, walked to several stores on a shopping errand. She attracted considerable attention, but appeared to be blissfully ignorant of the gaze or the comments of those whom she met.—Lock Haven Democrat.
